Churches Call For Arms Cuts

War May Destroy All Civilization, Fear

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—A national Christian gathering neared its close here today after calling for a harder push to achieve worldwide disarmament in the new age of rockets, nuclear weapons and satellites.

"We believe that the accelerating arms race which now grips our world may lead directly to a war which will destroy civilization," declared the General Assembly of the National Council of Churches.

"Efforts must be redoubled to realize the final goal of worldwide disarmament in the framework of the United Nations."

The church leaders, representing most major Protestant and Orthodox denominations in the country, also urged the nation to rededicate itself to eternal principles of compassion and justice.

The assembly set forth specific recommendations on a host of issues but the general tone of the pronouncements was set against a background of timeless faith now shadowed by prodigious new forces unleashed by man.

"MEN AND nations are reacting variously, in fear and hope, frustration and boasting, apathy and frenzy," the statement said. It added that Christianity, amid such confusion, still sees life steadily and whole and responds neither with complacency nor panic, but with confidence and appropriate action.

"God continues to rule over history with judgment and with grace," it declared.

Stevenson Missionary Offer Said Ignored by Eisenhower

WASHINGTON (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson offered to go to Paris last month as advance "missionary" spreading the idea of a new American cold war strategy. But the Eisenhower administration ignored his offer, according to information here.

It was learned that Stevenson proposed in a memo to Secretary of State Dulles early last month that he go to Paris as a private citizen in advance of the Dec. 16 meeting of NATO chiefs.

Stevenson's idea was that he could talk to his friends in Europe with a view to winning their support for an American plan for overcoming Soviet advances typified by the Sputnik satellite. Instead, he became a consultant in drawing up a program for the County Board Tables School Remonstrance

A remonstrance petition against the latest school consolidation move was filed Wednesday by the New Holland school district, according to County Superintendent George McDowell.

New Holland filed the petition and it was read, discussed and reviewed at the meeting of the County Board of Education the same day. The remonstrance was tabled, the board said, due to insufficient signers.

To be effective, the petition needed 1,021 signatures, McDowell said, and the New Holland petition had only 283. The petition had to have a majority of registered voters in the last general election of the total district, which includes Wayne, Jackson, Darby, Muhlenberg, Monroe, Williamsport, Atlanta and New Holland.

The County board will convene tomorrow at 1:30 to consider a remonstrance petition filed by Wayne Twp. Thursday at 10:45 a. m. Wayne's petition had 86 signers.

Polish Militia Quells Anti-Police Rioting

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—Steel helmeted militia reserves were called out to quell anti-police rioting in the western Polish town of Gorzow Monday, the Communist party organ Trybuna Ludu reports. It said "hooligans, many of them drunk," pelted police and passersby with stones and bottles after a police car knocked down a woman cyclist.

The paper described the riot as a "hooligan excess."

Indonesia Now Expelling Dutch

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—Indonesia began expelling Dutch subjects today in its hard-fisted campaign to win West New Guinea. At the same time reports poured in that Indonesian employes throughout this island republic were seizing Dutch business enterprises.

Justice minister Gustaaf Mangemkom said the immediate get-out order meant "within three days, if I had my way, but that is impossible."

THE EXPULSION order was announced as the Indonesians heaped pressure on the Netherlands to yield West New Guinea, the half-island which the Dutch government retained after granting independence to the rest of these East Indies in 1949.

Reports poured into Jakarta from all parts of the far-flung islands of a snowballing movement by workers seizing Dutch-owned banks, hotels, plantations, factories, clubs and businesses.

The Jakarta government told the Dutch diplomatic mission it expects evacuation of all Dutch citizens, except those whose special skills Indonesia needs, to begin immediately.

Information Minister Sudibjo said in an announcement that Dutch nationals in key jobs must keep working or face imprisonment as violators of "war and siege" regulations.

One source said some 46,000 Dutch—all except skilled technicians—are slated to go. About two-thirds of those marked for evacuation are Eurasians who were born in Indonesia and have lived here all their lives.

Thousands of Dutch besieged their embassy in Jakarta today in an effort to find out their future. Rumors flashed through the Indonesian capital.

THE DUTCH government showed no signs of bowing to the Indonesian pressure. It asked the International Red Cross and the International Refugee Organization to help in the evacuation.

Sources in The Hague said Holland could absorb the evacuees

Lebanon Girl, 6, Killed by Auto

MIDDLETOWN (AP)—Ferna Buergermeier, 6, was killed Thursday by an auto as she and her sister, Freda, 10, started to board a school bus along U.S. 42 near Lebanon.

Freda also was hurt but attached at Middletown Hospital said she was not seriously injured.

State highway patrolmen said the driver of the automobile which struck the girls was Buddy C. Smith, 20, of Springfield. The patrolmen said Smith told them he did not see the halted school bus or a halted car across from it until he came over a rise in the road. He said he was unable to stop and swerved to the right, hitting the two girls.

Smith was accused of manslaughter by state patrolmen.

The Dutch Cabinet met to discuss a draft plan for bringing the thousands of Holland. An official said the government intends to discuss a draft plan for bringing the thousands of Holland. An official said the government intends to discuss a draft plan for bringing the thousands of Holland.

The first Dutch to get the boot were 28 employes of KLM, the Royal Dutch Airline, and their families. Justice Minister Gustaaf Adolf Maengkom told them to leave as soon as possible, leaving behind more than $1 million worth of KLM equipment.

Trade with the Netherlands will be stopped immediately, Sudibjo said, and a break in diplomatic relations "is a matter of time."

The government also announced that all Dutch-owned harbor facilities have been nationalized. Seizure of the billion-dollar Dutch business properties in Indonesia, the former Netherlands East Indies, appeared to be only a matter of time unless the Hague government turns over West New Guinea.

Numerous Dutch businesses have already been seized by Communist-led unions. Premier Djundjund and military officials said this violated government orders, and the government took over the union-seized firms "temporarily to maintain security."

Sudibjo would not say, however, that the government takeover was permanent nationalization and added, "This will be discussed later." He said nationalization so far extends only to Dutch-owned port facilities.

12 Georgians Killed as Gas Line Explodes

VILLA RICA, Ga. (AP)—Grim-faced men resumed the search for additional bodies today in the blackened wreckage left by a terrific gas explosion and fire in this northwest Georgia town of 3,500.

Half a block was leveled by the blast Thursday. Twelve persons were known to have been killed and about 20 injured.

The town was without gas service, and people were warned not to turn on appliances.

The tragedy was the whole town's.

There was a boy who broke a tooth in school and went to the dentist's office and died; nurse who kept on working after the bodies of her brother and father were brought in; the people who visited a dime store to buy Christmas ornaments and were carried out later on stretchers.

The explosion demolished a drug store, dress shop, 10-cent store, jewelry and florist shop and a second-floor dentist's office. It was attributed by police to a faulty gas line in the basement of the drug store.

Oscar Hixon, superintendent of the municipally owned gas system, was working on the line at the time and was killed. Also killed were O. T. Dyer and his son Johnny, who were working with Hixon.

In 1919 he built the mill where the Ralston Purina Co. is now situated. He also operated three canneries in Ohio and three in Illinois. He had extensive land holdings in Pickaway County.

Launching Rocket Explodes in Its Stand on Ground

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—America's first satellite launching vehicle exploded in its stand today. The Pentagon said in Washington another test probably could not be held for about 30 days.

There were no casualties. A spokesman at Vanguard headquarters gave these details of the misfire:

"There was a loss of chamber pressure in the first stage after two seconds. The rocket fell back on the stand, toppled over toward the water to the east and exploded. The fire is now out."

This information was given out at 11:53 a. m. EST.

The American attempt to put a little 34-pound test sphere into a globe-circling course 300 miles up came more than a month after Russia had sent a 1,000-pound satellite aloft, and more than two months after the Soviets launched their Sputnik I.

Today's American test was a dismal failure.

There was a big flash of smoke and nothing left the ground. Apparently it blew up.

There was a tremendous blast of flame and then smoke shot up.

OBSERVERS from the beach were dismayed at the sight.

The launching attempt took thinly flecked clouds in the sky.

In the block house 100 yards from the base of the rocket, 25-year-old Paul Karpick, Martin Co. fire control expert, waited to touch the toggle switch that would send the vehicle aloft.

Limaite Says He Fired Only Blank Bullet

LIMA (AP)—Ralph Forsythe, on trial for the alleged slaying of Charles Conner, told the court Thursday that he shot the "victim" with a blank cartridge.

The 40-year-old defendant, charged with first degree murder, said Conner was dozing at the kitchen table in Forsythe's home Aug. 10 during a celebration of Conner's 37th birthday. Forsythe said he fired at Conner from close range to wake him up.

Forsythe said three witnesses to the shooting ran from the house and Forsythe said he told Conner: "My God, those people will think I killed you."

The defendant said Conner replied, "Yeah, you're right," and went back to sleep.

Forsythe testified that he ran after the men in an attempt to catch up with them and explain. He said he found one witness, Larue Arrington, who had stumbled over a garden hose, and tried to convince him the shooting was all in fun.

He said when he got back to the kitchen neither Conner nor the gun was there. Forsythe said he has not seen either since. Conner has never been found.

Defense attorney Ernest Navarre also began an attempt to prove that blood found in Forsythe's kitchen and in a truck belonging to the defendant was that of Forsythe and not Conner.

He called Dr. David Steiner of Lima who testified that Forsythe came to his home about 4 a. m. July 17 for treatment of a nose bleed. He said he sent Forsythe to Lima Memorial Hospital.

Balmier, Nastier Weather Forecast

COLUMBUS (AP)—The forecaster is predicting that the next several days in Ohio will bring balmier but nastier weather. Here is the forecast for the next five days:

Temperatures will average two to four degrees above normal. Normal high: 39 north; 42 south. Normal low: 26-28. Mild south; colder north, Saturday. Colder Sunday and Monday. Near normal temperatures Tuesday and Wednesday. Rain tonight and Saturday, probably changing to snow flurries Saturday night and ending Sunday. Rain or snow likely again Monday.

graduate from Orlando, Fla., would fire only a signal from the Navy, however. The military would give the final "go."

At 11:27 a. m. (EST), 25 minutes short of launching time, a 10-minute hold was declared, deferring the firing time again.

A hoped for dawn launching failed to materialize after a series of "holds" interrupted the long and detailed count down process which precedes any rocket firing.

The longest of these "holds" lasted from 2 a. m. to 5:30 a. m.

The final two hours before a launching are the most critical and frequently develop the most unexpected delays.

About mid-day, the weather looked favorable. Scattered clouds started clearing after daybreak and the outlook was that wind would be moderate.

The reasons for the delays were not announced but they could be guessed at. There were endless numbers of things that could go wrong at the last moment.

THE LAUNCHING site itself is closed to newsmen, not because the Vanguard project is secret—it is not—but because an assortment of secret military missiles is in the area, awaiting testing along the 5,000-mile range from Cape Canaveral to Ascension Island.

The intent has been to hurl a small aluminum ball 300 miles or more into space and set it spinning around the world.

The sphere is only 6.4 inches in diameter and weighs only about 34 pounds. It has minute solar cells and a chemical battery powering radio transmitters designed to broadcast on 108 megacycles, so that the orbiting course may be followed by tracking stations around the world.

There are two more small spheres at the test center, ready for further tests. After they have been sent aloft and equipment and techniques have been proved out, larger satellites will be launched.

The Vanguard program is a part of the worldwide coordinated scientific survey underway during the International Geophysical Year. The efforts will lead inevitably to attempts to launch insects and animals and eventually man himself into space.

Earlier this week an attempt to launch the big Martin Co. Vanguard rocket was called off after only 50 minutes remained of an 11-hour countdown which, with its long series of "holds," lasted 18 hours. That was Wednesday.

One of the major technical difficulties was a stubborn, leaky disconnect valve to a liquid oxygen tank.

Even more important, brisk low-level winds and high speed jet streams in the upper altitudes presented any slowly rising, heavy and slender rocket such as the Vanguard with the danger of being broken in two.

Shots Damage 3 Regulators

A. C. Breth, foreman of the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. substation at Ashville, today reported that three regulators were damaged by rifle shots.

According to Deputy Sheriff Charles Felkey one bullet hole was found in each of the regulators, causing damage estimated at $1,500.

The shooting incident was discovered this morning during a routine check of the plant. Deputy Felkey is continuing the investigation.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Chairman McClellan (D-Ak) of the Senate Rackets Committee made an unusual request. He wanted the witness, Ohioan Roy Byrd, to remove his shirt.

Grimacing and reddening slightly, the 30-year-old Cincinnati truck official obliged—bearing an ugly scar on his right shoulder inflicted by a bullet during a Teamsters' strike last year.

Photographers quickly huddled around him, shooting close-ups of the slender bare-backed man.

Then McClellan told him gravely: "You'll have to carry that disability all of your life, all because your employer wouldn't sign a blackjack contract."

"This is the penalty you paid for standing up for your rights as an American. . . ."

The occasion was the investigation Thursday, by the committee, of Byrd's story of being shot from ambush while driving a truck during a strike by Teamsters Local 621, Knoxville, Tenn., against his employer, Newman & Pemberton Co., of Knoxville. Nobody to his knowledge, he said, was ever arrested for the shooting, which put him in the hospital for 29 days.

The strike, for recognition of the union as bargaining agent, was abandoned as a failure. Byrd is now manager of the trucking firm's Cincinnati terminal, unable, he says, ever to drive another truck because of the weakened right arm.

As Byrd told it, he was fired at on two occasions and received telephoned threats against his life because he was continuing to work during the strike.

The first time, he said, his assailants fired at him from an automobile July 30, 1956, as he was making a turn in his truck near Knoxville. He said they managed only to knock out two tires.

But the next time, Aug. 8, he testified, he was fired at from a "carefully planned" ambush on the ground while he was driving at a slow rate of speed up a hill near LaFollette, Tenn.

Bullets filled the cab of his truck, he said, and "one grazed my back and one went completely through my shoulder."

Byrd said his driving companion, L. L. Banks, would have been "shot through the head" except that he happened to be lying down at the time.

"Do you have a pretty good idea who did it?" McClellan asked.

"No, sir," Byrd replied, "I haven't the slightest idea. I couldn't name any names." Shortly before the shooting, Byrd said, both he and his wife were receiving threats on the telephone.

The callers, he said, told him "I wasn't supposed to work" and told his wife they would "roll me in a blanket and put me on the porch."

The Byrds, who live at 512 Loda Lane in suburban Cincinnati, have a 3-year-old daughter, Diane.

"Was your wife upset?" asked committee counsel Robert F. Kennedy.

"Yes," Byrd replied.

"Were you upset?" Kennedy asked.

"I was just mad," said Byrd.

Surgeon Says Doctors Now Get Careless

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The rise of the wonder drugs has made doctors less careful about germ precaution measures in hospitals and operating rooms, a Philadelphia surgeon said today.

Dr. H. Taylor Caswell of Temple University Hospital told the closing session of the American Medical Assn.'s 11th annual clinical meeting: "The medical profession has come to regard the problem of infection much less seriously than it did prior to the development of antibiotics. We are now in an era when this attitude must be changed."

Declaring that certain strains of staphylococci germs have become resistant to most of the wonder drugs and that they present "a serious problem in hospitalized patients," Dr. Caswell said: "A return to the most strict hospital techniques of sterilization is essential. Unless this is done, successful control of infections in hospital patients with antibiotic resistant staphylococci is doomed to failure."

These wily bugs, he said, have been reported as sources of infections in various hospital targets including clean surgical wounds; in newborn babies as skin ailments; in nursing mothers as breast abscesses; in the respiratory tract as a form of pneumonia; and in severe types of stomach or intestinal inflammation in postoperative patients.

AFL-CIO Near Official Ouster Of Teamsters

Appeals Panel Approves Expulsion; Corruption Evidence Cited Anew

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP) — The AFL-CIO Appeal Committee today recommended expulsion of the corruption tainted Teamsters Union from the 15-million-member federation.

The committee's report said the Teamsters Union "has been and continues to be dominated or substantially influenced by corrupt influences."

Committee Secretary John J. Murphy of the Bricklayers Union read the 14-page report to the AFL-CIO convention.

A two-thirds vote on a rollcall this afternoon will expel the union from the federation. With its 1½ million members, the Teamsters represents 10 per cent of AFL-CIO membership.

The expulsion of the Teamsters climaxes testimony before the Senate Rackets Committee linking high Teamsters bosses to misuse of vast sums of union funds.

JAMES HOFFA, the union's president-elect, refused to the last to step aside—the main condition fixed by AFL-CIO leaders as the price for avoiding expulsion.

Four other unions (the Laundry, Bakery, Distillery and United Textile Workers unions) face similar expulsion action at next week's sessions of the AFL-CIO convention, also on charges based on disclosures before congressional committees.

The Distillery Workers were given a chance Thursday night for certain officers to quit, but they declined, and as a result face suspension and expulsion.

Expulsion action against the Teamsters caused private misgivings among leaders of other AFL-CIO unions. "The building trades have said possibly in a resolution opposing Teamsters punishment that the same thing might occur to other unions whose leaders were accused of corruption."

But AFL-CIO President George Meany pushed the Teamsters expulsion as an example for organized labor that corruption would be dealt with harshly.

Meany's stand was publicly applauded by President Eisenhower in a message to the AFL-CIO convention delivered by Secretary of Labor Mitchell.

Mitchell went on to outline a program of amendments to the Taft-Hartley law which he said Eisenhower will propose to Congress in January. They dealt both with the labor corruption issues and with other "appropriate and timely" changes in the nation's labor laws.

The administration legislative proposals called for strict disclosure and accounting for union funds and practices, election of union officers at least every four years by secret members' ballot, and a bribery ban on union and management representatives passing money to each other.

Mitchell pledged President Eisenhower as being opposed to en-

Austrian Newspapers Chide Scoffers at U.S. Satellite

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Three newspapers in Vienna, Austria, today criticized those who scoff at the U. S. rocket program and the delay in launching an earth satellite.

They also assailed Austrian and other Western newspapers for their satirical comment on U. S. difficulties with the satellite.

The conservative People's party paper Das Kleine Volksblatt said "the feeling of depression which the fault finders are spreading makes these people unconscious allies of the Communists."

The conservative Neue Tagzeitung referred to "Moscow's perfect blackout technique" and demanded: "How many failures did the Soviets experience in tests before they got their Sputniks up?"

The independent Die Presse observed the Russians also had to overcome many difficulties before their rockets worked and added: "The real fact is that, with or without an earth satellite, the United States is without dispute the world's top ranking industrial power."

The foreign comments came after an American congressman, Rep. W. R. Poage (D-Tex.) proposed that "we keep our mouths shut until we do something" in launching a space satellite.

"Then let the people look up into the sky and see for themselves," he said.

Criticizing advance disclosures about the delayed launching, Poage asserted: "Our own advertising has hurt us more than Russia's launching of both Sputniks. It's like the man who brags about his fine cattle, then brings his old broken-down cows into the show ring."

Similar criticism is being heard abroad.

"United States disgrace, Spaetnik doesn't start!" That was the banner headline in Thursday's Vienna Welt Presse, an anti-Communist newspaper, reporting on the oft-postponed American project.

Several non-Communist papers here have taken to calling the American satellite the "Spaetnik," which in German means late Sputnik.

There also has been a lot of jesting about its small size. One paper cartooned President Eisenhower swinging his golf club at a ball labeled "U. S. Sputnik" as dozens of cameramen focused. The caption was: "Will It Fly?"

Other papers talked about "the inept publicity" attending the U. S. satellite effort, with the comment that the Russians made no announcement until their satellites were up for all the world to see.

Papers in Moscow just ignored the whole U. S. effort.

Japan, Soviet OK Commerce Treaty

TOKYO (AP)—Japan and the Soviet Union today signed a commerce treaty expected to more than quadruple their trade to $28 million a year each way.

Japan will send the Soviets ships, rolling stock, machinery and equipment, electric equipment and installations, marine products, steel and nonferrous metals, cables, synthetic thread, and chemical products.

AFL-CIO Near Official Ouster Of Teamsters

Appeals Panel Approves Expulsion; Corruption Evidence Cited Anew

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. — The AFL - CIO Appeal Committee today recommended expulsion of the corruption tainted Teamsters Union from the 15-million-member federation.

The committee's report said the Teamsters Union "has been and continues to be dominated or substantially influenced by corrupt influences."

Committee Secretary John J. Murphy of the Bricklayers Union read the 14-page report to the AFL-CIO convention.

A two-thirds vote on a rollcall this afternoon will expel the union from the federation. With its 1½ million members, the Teamsters represents 10 per cent of AFL-CIO membership.

The expulsion of the Teamsters climaxes testimony before the Senate Rackets Committee linking high Teamsters bosses to misuse of vast sums of union funds.

JAMES HOFFA, the union's president-elect, refused to the last to step aside—the main condition fixed by AFL-CIO leaders as the price for avoiding expulsion.

Four other unions (the Laundry, Bakery, Distillery and United Textile Workers unions) face similar expulsion action at next week's sessions of the AFL-CIO convention, also on charges based on disclosures before congressional committees.

The Distillery Workers were given a chance Thursday night for certain officers to quit, but they declined, and as a result face suspension and expulsion.

Expulsion action against the Teamsters caused private misgivings among leaders of other AFL-CIO unions. "The building trades have said possibly in a resolution opposing Teamsters punishment that the same thing might occur to other unions whose leaders were accused of corruption."

But AFL-CIO President George Meany pushed the Teamsters expulsion as an example for organized labor that corruption would be dealt with harshly.

Meany's stand was publicly applauded by President Eisenhower in a message to the AFL-CIO convention delivered by Secretary of Labor Mitchell.

Mitchell went on to outline a program of amendments to the Taft-Hartley law which he said Eisenhower will propose to Congress in January. They deal both with the labor corruption issues and with other "appropriate and timely" changes in the nation's labor laws.

The administration legislative proposals called for strict disclosure and accounting for union funds and practices, election of union officers at least every four years by secret members' ballot, and a bribery ban on union and management representatives passing money to each other.

Mitchell pledged President Eisenhower as being opposed to en-

Austrian Newspapers Chide Scoffers at U.S. Satellite

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Three newspapers in Vienna, Austria, today criticized those who scoff at the U. S. rocket program and the delay in launching an earth satellite.

They also assailed Austrian and other Western newspapers for their satirical comment on U. S. difficulties with the satellite.

The conservative People's party paper Das Kleine Volksblatt said "the feeling of depression which the fault finders are spreading makes these people unconscious allies of the Communists."

The conservative Neue Tagzeitung referred to "Moscow's perfect blackout technique" and demanded: "How many failures did the Soviets experience in tests before they got their Sputniks up?"

The independent Die Presse observed the Russians also had to overcome many difficulties before their rockets worked and added: "The real fact is that, with or without an earth satellite, the United States is without dispute the world's top ranking industrial power."

The foreign comments came after an American congressman, Rep. W. R. Poage (D-Tex.) proposed that "we keep our mouths shut until we do something" in launching a space satellite.

"Then let the people look up

into the sky and see for themselves," he said.

Criticizing advance disclosures about the delayed launching, Poage asserted: "Our own advertising has hurt us more than Russia's launching of both Sputniks. It's like the man who brags about his fine cattle, then brings his old broken-down cows into the show ring."

Similar criticism is being heard abroad.

"United States disgrace, Spaetnik doesn't start!" That was the banner headline in Thursday's Vienna Welt Presse, an anti-Communist newspaper, reporting on the oft-postponed American project.

Several non-Communist papers here have taken to calling the American satellite the "Spaetnik" which in German means late Sputnik.

There also has been a lot of jesting about its small size. One paper cartooned President Eisenhower swinging his golf club at a ball labeled "U. S. Sputnik" as dozens of cameramen focused. The caption was: "Will It Fly?"

Other papers talked about "the inept publicity" attending the U. S. satellite effort, with the comment that the Russians made no announcement until their satellites were up for all the world to see.

Papers in Moscow just ignored the whole U. S. effort.

Japan, Soviet OK Commerce Treaty

TOKYO — Japan and the Soviet Union today signed a commerce treaty expected to more than quadruple their trade to $28 million a year each way.

Japan will send the Soviets ships, rolling stock, machinery and equipment, electric equipment and installations, marine products, steel and nonferrous metals, cables, synthetic thread, and chemical products.

Santa and the STRONG BOY

by LUCRECE HUDGINS BEALE

SYNOPSIS: Fairy wizards mistakenly christen the new born prince of Mittenpoo three times with Strength but not at all with Courage and Wisdom. The cowardly prince grows up a disgrace to his father. He decides to seek Santa Claus and ask him to give him Courage and Wisdom.

CHAPTER THREE
RICHARD AND THE CIRCUS
It was late at night when the prince slipped out of his bed. When he had dressed he wrote a letter to the king.

"Dear Father," he wrote. "I know I make you angry because I am not very bright and I am a coward, people say. So I am going away and I won't come back until I can be a good prince, wise and brave, the way you want me to be."

When he had finished the letter he climbed out the window and dropped to the ground. It was a very big drop but the prince was so strong and agile it didn't bother him at all.

What did bother him was the dark. He was so afraid of it that when he had gone only a little way he stopped and crouched under a bush. There he waited, shivering with fright until daylight.

When at last the sun was up he set out again. But he was still very frightened because he had never before been beyond the palace grounds.

"How shall I ever find Santa Claus?" he wondered as he walked through the town. "I don't even know his address."

Presently he saw a shopkeeper sweeping the sidewalk in front of his shop.

"Pardon me," said Richard. "Can you tell me where Santa Claus lives?"

The shopkeeper looked at him in astonishment. "Are you joking me?" he asked suspiciously.

"Oh, no," protested Richard. "I want to see Santa but I don't know what street he lives on."

"Well, son," said the shopkeeper, "you sound daft to me but all the same I will tell you one thing. Santa Claus doesn't live on any street around here that I know of."

"Where then?" persisted Richard.

"Well, somewhere up North, I guess. Around the North Pole, they say." Then the shopkeeper poked his broom at the boy. "Get going now, I'm tired of your nonsense."

Richard moved along until he came to a popcorn vendor.

"Pardon me," said Richard. "Can you tell me where the North Pole is?"

The vendor stared at him before he cried out, "Up North, you do it. Where else?"

Richard went on until he came to a field where many men were struggling to raise a tent.

"Pardon me," said Richard to one of the workers. "Can you tell me where North is?"

"That way," said the worker, pointing in the direction of a fat man standing beside an enormous tent pole.

Richard went up to the fat man and asked, "Is that the North Pole?"

"Run along," snapped the man whose name was Mr. Maxim. "I've no time for jokes. This circus opens tonight and it will be hours yet before we can get this tent raised."

Richard thought perhaps Santa Claus was somewhere under the tent that the men were struggling to raise.

"May I look under the tent?" he asked politely.

"Oh, sure," said Mr. Maxim mockingly. "Just take this 100 foot pole, stick it under the canvas and raise it."

Richard picked up the pole as easily as though it had been a walking stick and pushed it under the canvas. He gave one heave and the whole tent was raised and in position.

Mr. Maxim and the other workers stared at Richard.

"Boy!" cried Mr. Maxim at last. "You have a job with this circus! We'll book you as the strongest boy in the world! We'll..."

But Richard was disappointed

"Boy, you have a job with this circus!"

that Santa was not under the tent.

"I'd like to help you," he said, "but I am travelling."

"Well, boy! We travel!" cried Mr. Maxim. "A circus travels all over the world."

"I want to go North," said Richard.

"We go North" said Mr. Maxim. "We go everywhere!"

"Then," said Richard eagerly, "I'll be happy to stay with you until you get to the North Pole."

Tomorrow: The Strong Boy.

Friml Planning No Celebration

Famed Musician's Birthday Saturday

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Saturday Rudolf Friml celebrates another birthday and he'll spend it as he has most of his life—improvising.

The survivor of the Herbert-Friml-Romberg trio of operetta composers, the Czech-born musician is listed by most authorities as 73. He doesn't really know, but suspects he is older.

"Recently I got a letter from a man in Prague who said he couldn't get records of 'Donkey Serenade' (which Friml hates) and others of my songs," he said. "I told him I would send him some if he would look up the official records and see how old I am."

"I hope it turns out I am 95. It would be nice to know I feel so good at such an age!"

There can be no doubt that he feels good. He had just returned to his cliff-hanging Hollywood Hills home from a massage and steam bath on the Sunset Strip. He told of his Palm Desert home where he does gymnastics and rides his bicycle. He displayed a leg wound inflicted by a unfriendly chow dog on a recent bike jaunt.

It's music that seems to keep him young. The Chinese-decorated incense-scented home, where he lives with his Chinese wife, is filled with sheet music and recordings of piano pieces Friml has improvised. He sits at his grand piano for hours, pouring out the music that is in his head.

There can be no doubt that he feels good. He had just returned to his cliff-hanging Hollywood Hills home from a massage and steam bath on the Sunset Strip. He told of his Palm Desert home where he does gymnastics and rides his bicycle. He displayed a leg wound inflicted by an unfriendly chow dog on a recent bike jaunt.

It's music that seems to keep him young. The Chinese-decorated incense-scented home, where he lives with his Chinese wife, is filled with sheet music and recordings of piano pieces Friml has improvised. He sits at his grand piano for hours, pouring out the music that is in his head.

Santa and the STRONG BOY

by LUCRECE HUDGINS BEALE

SYNOPSIS: Fairy wizards mistakenly christen the new born prince of Mitzenpoo three times with Strength but not at all with Courage and Wisdom. The cowardly prince grows up a disgrace to his father. He decides to seek Santa Claus and ask him to give him Courage and Wisdom.

RICHARD AND THE CIRCUS

It was late at night when the prince slipped out of his bed. When he had dressed he wrote a letter to the king.

"Dear Father," he wrote, "I know I make you angry because I am not very bright and I am a coward, people say. So I am going away and I won't come back until I can be a good prince, wise and brave, the way you want me to be."

When he had finished the letter he climbed out the window and dropped to the ground. It was a very big drop but the prince was so strong and agile it didn't bother him at all.

What did bother him was the dark. He was so afraid of it that when he had gone only a little way he stopped and crouched under a bush. There he waited, shivering with fright until daylight.

When at last the sun was up he set out again. But he was still very frightened because he had never before been beyond the palace grounds.

Presently he saw a shopkeeper sweeping the sidewalk in front of his shop.

"Pardon me," said Richard. "Can you tell me where Santa Claus lives?"

The shopkeeper looked at him in astonishment. "Are you joking me?" he asked suspiciously.

"Oh, no," protested Richard. "I want to see Santa but I don't know what street he lives on."

"Where then?" persisted Richard.

"Well, somewhere up North, I guess. Around the North Pole, they say." Then the shopkeeper poked his broom at the boy. "Get going now, I'm tired of your nonsense."

Richard moved along until he came to a popcorn vendor.

"Pardon me," said Richard. "Can you tell me where the North Pole is?"

The vendor stared at him before he cried out, "Up North, you do it. Where else?"

Richard went on until he came to a field where many men were struggling to raise a tent.

"Pardon me," said Richard to one of the workers. "Can you tell me where North is?"

"That way," said the worker, pointing in the direction of a fat man standing beside an enormous tent pole.

Richard went up to the fat man and asked, "Is that the North Pole?"

"Run along," snapped the man whose name was Mr. Maxim. "I've no time for jokes. This circus opens tonight and it will be hours yet before we can get this tent raised."

Richard thought perhaps Santa Claus was somewhere under the tent that the men were struggling to raise.

"May I look under the tent?" he asked politely.

"Oh, sure," said Mr. Maxim mockingly. "Just take this 100 foot pole, stick it under the canvas and raise it."

Richard picked up the pole as easily as though it had been a walking stick and pushed it under the canvas. He gave one heave and the whole tent was raised and in position.

Mr. Maxim and the other workers stared at Richard.

"Boy!" cried Mr. Maxim at last. "You have a job with this circus! We'll book you as the strongest boy in the world! We'll—"

But Richard was disappointed

"Boy, you have a job with this circus!"

Seeking Peck of Trouble

Grain farmers and handlers are disturbed by a Department of Agriculture proposal to substitute hundredweights for bushels. So are others, but for different reasons.

The grain industry's complaint is that adoption of the hundredweight system would only complicate matters because bulk is just as important an economic factor as weight. A bushel of wheat weighs 60 pounds and a bushel of oats only 32 pounds, for example, — but each requires exactly the same amount of storage space.

On a hundredweight basis, it is contended by critics of the proposal, storage requirements for different grains would be quite difficult to figure.

There is a valid objection to any move to restrict the use of the word "bushel," one of the most time-honored in the language. Let such a scheme go far enough, and future generations might be puzzled by the phrase, "To hide one's light under a bushel." It could be made to read, "Hide one's light under six-tenths of one-hundred-weight"—but who would want to be responsible for that?

Similarly, Shakespeare's phrase would have to read: "Two grains of wheat hid in 1.2 hundredweight of chaff." And what of the swain who sends "bushels of love"?

Please, Mr. Secretary of Agriculture, let the bushel alone, and earn for yourself a peck of gratitude.

6 Kinds of Grocery Shoppers

By Hal Boyle

By ED CREAGH
(For Hal Boyle)

WASHINGTON — Personal to Queen Elizabeth II of England and King Mohammed V. of Morocco:

Your majesties have shown an interest, during your visits to these shores, in the American supermarket. Well you might. The supermarket, in its awe-inspiring majesty, is an ever-growing symbol of American abundance.

What your majesties may have missed, though, in your marveling at the topless heaps of goodies, detergents, stockings, mops and phonograph records, is perhaps the most remarkable thing of all: The supermarket customers.

He (and especially she) comes in many varieties, but the following categories pretty well cover the field:

1. Big Bertha. She's the same gal who drives in front of you on the highway—right down the middle of the road. She drives her shopping cart as if it were a Sherman tank. She will either run you down or leave her cart smack in the aisle where you're bound to trip over it.

2. Dottie Dither. She's in a frantic hurry to get out with a tube of toothpaste which she won't need until next week. So she sneaks ahead of you in the checkout line and then discovers she needs cigarettes, then discovers an assortment of items so offbeat the manager has to go downstairs and open the safe to find them.

3. Helpless Harry. He's feeling put-upon because his wife stuck him with the shopping detail. You can always spot him by the list he carries. It has such jottings as "B & S R's," which he is supposed to interpret as "brown-n'-serve rolls," and "4 D. F.T." by which his wife means he is to get four cans of dog food if, but only if, there is a sale on it.

4. Gourmet George. He may have a list too, but he pays small attention to it. He's gaily loading up with hummingbird tongues, fried agave worms and all manner of other delicacies which he doesn't know how to prepare and wouldn't eat if he could.

5. Penniless Pete, or Mrs. Pete. They heap their shopping buggies with grub enough to hold a clam bake and then discover they haven't a cent in their pockets. So the manager, who never saw them before, is supposed to cash a crumpled check, signed with a name that looks like "Nikita S. Khrushchev," and if he says no they take their business elsewhere.

6. Fertile Flossie. She makes shopping a family affair, meaning that the six older children run wild while baby sits in the shopping cart happily knocking bottles off the shelves. The older children clamor for soft drinks, beat each other on the head and steal candy out of your shopping cart.

Where Is GOP Headed?

By George Sokolsky

Is the Republican Party beginning to fade away? It is a question that puzzles many older Republicans, those who were devoted to the party prior to 1952.

For instance, in New Jersey, the Republicans have a United States senator, H. Alexander Smith, who has been doing quite well and has a good reputation and who probably could be re-elected. Smith went pro-Eisenhower whole hog, although at one time Sen. Taft thought he had a deal with him. Apparently Smith did not recall the deal and in politics that often happens. Also Smith followed the Eisenhower line right down the middle on the unpleasant subject of Joe McCarthy, although Joe expected different from Smith.

So the record is that Smith has been pro-Eisenhower, giving the Modern Republicans his all. Now, however, when Smith has a chance for re-election, he is being bumped off politically in the interest of Bernard Shanley, one of President Eisenhower's secretaries who wants to be senator. The reason given for pushing Sen. Smith out is that he is too old, being 77 years old. However, Sen. Green of Rhode Island is 90 and can still dance with a pretty lass.

The bumping off of Sen. Smith has produced a free-for-all in New Jersey. Instead of party unity being produced, candidates are springing up all over the place. What undoubtedly will happen is that three or four will be in the finals and probably the Democrats will win. At any rate, bumping Sen. Smith off because he is too old is not good politics because, apart from everything else, there are a lot of voters these days who might be called too old.

In New York City, the Republicans got themselves roundly trounced in the last mayoralty election. They had no money for a campaign, no workers, no issue, no leadership. Their candidate, Robert Christenberry, a hotel man, is a fine fellow, well met, but no politician. The only way he could have won was to have engaged in a fighting campaign in the course of which he established beyond peradventure the shame of municipal corruption to such a degree that even the gangsters would be chagrined. He established nothing and maybe there is nothing to establish.

So the Republicans displayed unusual weakness and ineptitude and many of the citizens wondered where they were until they got to rowing among themselves which made them ludicrous. Into this situation stepped John Roosevelt, a son of the late and lamented Franklin D. Roosevelt. John, unlike his father and brothers, calls himself a Republican and has ambitions to political glory thereby. At any rate, Republicans in New York never heard of him before as belonging to them; but there is no rule against it.

However, like most Roosevelt, he is in a hurry to take over and those who have spent years trying to keep the show on the road wonder how he came in. At any rate they feel that he might take his turn at the end of the line like anybody else. So that is one fight.

Another is that Sen. Jacob Javits, having shocked the country by his sponsorship of the astonishing appointment of Maxwell Gluck to be Ambassador to Ceylon, has been insisting that a pal of his, Samuel Roman, be made Postmaster, which is a good job that for one reason or another has too long been vacant. Most Republicans are opposed to Roman for this or that reason, some of which may be valid. So to clarify their opposition, they propose that Mrs. Caroline Simon be given the post as a reward for getting more votes

Use Cold Cream in Winter

By Herman N. Bundesen, M.D.

Try cold cream for protection during cold weather.

Skin chapping is a universal problem, but it is especially likely to occur in cold, dry and windy weather. This can mean severe damage to the skin.

Under such climatic conditions, the air absorbs more water than usual from your skin. As it is, most American women have dry skin, anyway.

Without anything to protect the skin, you are apt to develop flaking and roughness on your face, lips and hands.

Unless proper treatment is begun, the chapped areas might become cracked, red and swollen. Really bad chapping sometimes results in open bleeding and crusting.

Probably one of the best ways of preventing chapping, and also treating it after it has occurred, is to apply a greasy film to the exposed areas. This helps cut the skin's water loss.

Obviously, the simplest way of doing this is to rub cold cream on the areas. Most cold creams, today are soothing to skin.

Applying cold cream before exposure to the elements helps prevent chapping. Using it on areas already chapped soothes the tissues and provides protection from further injury.

Be sure to dry the skin thoroughly because rapid evaporation of water makes the skin more susceptible to chapping.

While cold cream generally can be applied to normal skin without harm, it might be well for anyone with excessively oily skin conditions, such as acne, to avoid its use.

Question and Answer

J. B.: Is it true that there is a blood test that can detect cancer in the body?

Answer: Up to the present time, no accurate, practical test has been devised to detect cancer by means of a blood test. However, research is being carried out toward this end.

$3 Million Fund OK'd For Diagnostic Center

COLUMBUS — The Ohio Controlling Board has released slightly more than $3 million for two new buildings at the Juvenile Diagnostic Center here.

The building will house a 150-bed reception and classification center and a 100-bed psychiatric treatment institution for delinquent children.

The board also released $1,670,000 for a new business building at Miami University.

than anybody else on the Republican ticket.

Mrs. Simon is a do-gooder and very popular and it is difficult to see how anyone can oppose her, because she is also very efficient or is that an objectionable quality for a Post Office appointment?

Another fight is over the governorship. Republican candidates are proliferating like the stars in the heavens. Several millionaires are mentioned, in the hope that the party might get some money. Also, former Attorney General Brownell is mentioned. Also some suggest Benjamin Javits, the elder and smart brother of Sen. Jacob Javits. Put it as you wish, if the Republicans continue to quarrel, it is likely that the Democrat, Averell Harriman, will be re-elected.

In the aforementioned states, the Democrats are not quarreling.

Respiratory Diseases Show Jump in Nation

WASHINGTON — The U. S. Public Health Service has reported an apparent increase in the severity of the acute upper respiratory diseases which have been sweeping the country.

But the service added that the peak of new cases "at least for the present, was passed in mid-October."

"Apparent severity, measured in terms of days in bed per case, gradually has been increasing," the service said in its weekly report on health survey samplings.

The World Today

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON — The only thing unusual about President Eisenhower's meetings this week with 31 congressional leaders was that he was able to hold the meetings at all so soon after his mild stroke.

Otherwise the result could have been predicted: No special sweetness and light on Congress in 1958.

The lawmakers came away in that now classic frame of mind called a "mixed reaction." The Democrats more or less had fault to find. The Republicans more or less approved.

Eisenhower talked with Democrats and Republicans one day about the defense and foreign programs for 1958, the next day with Republicans alone about the domestic programs.

His domestic plans appear to have been sketchy and far from complete. Democrats complained his plans for defense and strengthening relations with the allies didn't show a sense of urgency. One thing seems certain: Russian success in missiles and science have so upset Congress that the members of both parties will give the President the money he needs for modern weapons, particularly missiles.

The Democrats were fairly mild in their criticism may be due possibly because of the Russian scare. It's had a sobering effect on politicians. But that may be only temporary.

This seems to be the picture which emerged during the two days of sessions at the White House.

Because Eisenhower will ask increased spending for defense and foreign aid, it is almost certain there will be no income tax cut in 1958.

Further, Congress will almost certainly—because of the need for revenue—continue the present rates of corporation and excise (sales) taxes which otherwise would have gone down automatically by the end of next June.

Eisenhower hopes—but is not positive he can do it—to keep the budget balanced, despite higher defense costs, and to avoid deficit spending or even an income tax increase.

He's going to ask about half a billion more for foreign aid.

That's going to mean an awful tight squeeze unless Congress can find some places where it can cut other kinds of government spending. It might, for instance, try to reduce defense spending in areas other than missiles.

Trying to figure that one out is enough in itself to keep congressional tongues wagging through 1958. But the administration seems to have ideas it can economize by cutting spending also on domestic programs.

Next year is an election year

for most members of Congress. Domestic programs affect the people back home. Cuts bring squawks. Squawks in an election year have a dangerous sound for politicians.

And Democrats already have indicated they'll fight cuts in domestic programs.

What your majesties may have missed, though, in your marveling at the topless heaps of goods, detergents, stockings, mops and phonograph records, is perhaps the most remarkable thing of all: The supermarket customers.

He (and especially she) comes in many varieties, but the following categories pretty well cover the field:

1. Big Bertha. She's the same gal who drives in front of you on the highway—right down the middle of the road. She drives her shopping cart as if it were a Sherman tank. She will either run you down or leave her cart smack in the aisle where you're bound to trip over it.

2. Dottie Dither. She's in a frantic hurry to get out with a tube of toothpaste which she won't need until next week. So she sneaks ahead of you in the checkout line and then discovers she needs cigarettes, clothespins, anchovies and an assortment of items so offbeat the manager has to go downstairs and open the safe to find them.

3. Helpless Harry. He's feeling put-upon because his wife stuck him with the shopping detail. You can always spot him by the list he carries. It has such jottings as "B & S R's," which he is supposed to interpret as "brown-n-serve rolls," and "4 D. F.," by which his wife means he is to get four cans of dog food, but only if there is a sale on it.

4. Gourmet George. He may have a list too, but he pays small attention to it. He's gaily loading up with hummingbird tongues, fried agave worms and all manner of other delicacies which he doesn't know how to prepare and wouldn't eat if he could.

5. Pennyless Pete, or Mrs. Pete. They heap their shopping buggies with grub enough to hold a clam bake and then discover they haven't a cent in their pockets. So the manager, who never saw them before, is supposed to cash a crumpled check, signed with a name that looks like "Nikita S. Khrushchev," and if he says no they take their business elsewhere.

6. Fertile Flossie. She makes shopping a family affair, meaning that the six older children run wild while baby sits in the shopping cart happily knocking bottles off the shelves. The older children clamor for soft drinks, beat each other on the head and steal candy out of your shopping cart.

Use Cold Cream in Winter

By Herman N. Bundesen, M.D.

Try cold cream for protection during cold weather.

Skin chapping is a universal problem, but it is especially likely to occur in cold, dry and windy weather. This can mean severe damage to the skin.

Under such climatic conditions, the air absorbs more water than usual from your skin. As it is, most American women have dry skin, anyway.

Without anything to protect the skin, you are apt to develop flaking and roughness on your face, lips and hands.

Unless proper treatment is begun, the chapped areas might become cracked, red and swollen. Really bad chapping sometimes results in open bleeding and crusting.

Probably one of the best ways of preventing chapping, and also treating it after it has occurred, is to apply a greasy film to the exposed areas. This helps cut the skin's water loss.

Obviously, the simplest way of doing this is to rub cold cream on the areas. Most cold creams, today are soothing to skin.

Applying cold cream before exposure to the elements helps prevent chapping. Using it on areas

than anybody else on the Republican ticket.

Mrs. Simon is a do-gooder and very popular and it is difficult to see how anyone can oppose her, because she is also very efficient or is that an objectionable quality for a Post Office appointment?

Another fight is over the governorship. Republican candidates are proliferating like the stars in the heavens. Several millionaires are mentioned, in the hope that the party might get some money. Also, former Attorney General Brownell is mentioned. Also some suggest Benjamin Javits, the elder and smart brother of Sen. Jacob Javits. Put it as you wish, if the Republicans continue to quarrel, it is likely that the Democrat, Averell Harriman, will be re-elected.

In the aforementioned states, the Democrats are not quarreling.

Of course you should avoid washing the chapped areas any more than is necessary. And then you should use only water, no soap or detergents.

Be sure to dry the skin thoroughly because rapid evaporation of water makes the skin more susceptible to chapping.

While cold cream generally can be applied to normal skin without harm, it might be well for anyone with excessively oily skin conditions, such as acne, to avoid its use.

Answer: Up to the present time, no accurate, practical test has been devised to detect cancer by means of a blood test. However, research is being carried out toward this end.

$3 Million Fund OK'd For Diagnostic Center

COLUMBUS — The Ohio Controlling Board has released slightly more than $3 million for two new buildings at the Juvenile Diagnostic Center here.

The building will house a 150-bed reception and classification center and a 100-bed psychiatric treatment institution for delinquent children.

The board also released $1,670,000 for a new business building at Miami University.

Respiratory Diseases Show Jump in Nation

WASHINGTON — The U. S. Public Health Service has reported an apparent increase in the severity of the acute upper respiratory diseases which have been sweeping the country.

But the service added that the peak of new cases "at least for the present, was passed in mid-October."

"Apparent severity, measured in terms of days in bed per case, gradually has been increasing," the service said in its weekly report on health survey samplings.

The World Today

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON — The only thing unusual about President Eisenhower's meetings this week with 31 congressional leaders was that he was able to hold the meetings at all so soon after his mild stroke.

Otherwise the result could have been predicted: No special sweetness and light on Congress in 1958.

The lawmakers came away in that now classic frame of mind called a "mixed reaction." The Democrats more or less had fault to find. The Republicans more or less approved.

Eisenhower talked with Democrats and Republicans one day about the defense and foreign programs for 1958, the next day with Republicans alone about the domestic programs.

His domestic plans appear to have been sketchy and far from complete. Democrats complained his plans for defense and strengthening relations with the allies didn't show a sense of urgency.

One thing seems certain: Russian success in missiles and science have so upset Congress that the members of both parties will give the President the money he needs for modern weapons, particularly missiles.

The Democrats were fairly mild in their criticism may be due possibly because of the Russian scare. It's had a sobering effect on politicians. But that may be only temporary.

This seems to be the picture which emerged during the two days of sessions at the White House.

Because Eisenhower will ask increased spending for defense and foreign aid, it is almost certain there will be no income tax cut in 1958.

Further, Congress will almost certainly—because of the need for revenue—continue the present rates of corporation and excise (sales) taxes which otherwise would have gone down automatically by the end of next June.

Eisenhower hopes—but is not positive he can do it—to keep the budget balanced, despite higher defense costs, and to avoid deficit spending or even an income tax increase.

He's going to ask about half a billion more for foreign aid.

That's going to mean an awful tight squeeze unless Congress can find some places where it can cut other kinds of government spending. It might, for instance, try to reduce defense spending in areas other than missiles.

Trying to figure that one out is enough in itself to keep congressional tongues wagging through 1958. But the administration seems to have ideas it can economize by cutting spending also on domestic programs.

Next year is an election year

for most members of Congress. Domestic programs affect the people back home. Cuts bring squawks. Squawks in an election year have a dangerous sound for politicians.

And Democrats already have indicated they'll fight cuts in domestic programs.

Where Is GOP Headed?

By George Sokolsky

Is the Republican Party beginning to fade away? It is a question that puzzles many older Republicans, those who were devoted to the party prior to 1952.

For instance, in New Jersey, the Republicans have a United States senator, H. Alexander Smith, who has been doing quite well and has a good reputation and who probably could be re-elected. Smith went pro-Eisenhower while hog, although at one time Sen. Taft thought he had a deal with him. Apparently Smith did not recall the deal and in politics that often happens. Also Smith followed the Eisenhower line right down the middle on the unpleasant subject of Joe McCarthy, although Joe expected different from Smith.

So the record is that Smith has been pro-Eisenhower, giving the Modern Republicans his all. Now, however, when Smith has a chance for re-election, he is being bumped off politically in the interest of Bernard Shanley, one of President Eisenhower's secretaries who wants to be senator. The reason given for pushing Sen. Smith out is that he is too old, being 77 years old. However, Sen. Green of Rhode Island is 90 and can still dance with a pretty lass.

The bumping off of Sen. Smith has produced a free-for-all in New Jersey. Instead of party unity being produced, candidates are springing up all over the place. What undoubtedly will happen is that three or four will be in the finals and probably the Democrats will win. At any rate, bumping Sen. Smith off because he is too old is not good politics because, apart from everything else, there are a lot of voters these days who might be called too old.

In New York City, the Republicans got themselves roundly trounced in the last mayoralty election. They had no money for a campaign, no workers, no issue, no leadership. Their candidate, Robert Christenberry, a hotel man, is a fine fellow, well met, but no politician. The only way he could have won was to have engaged in a fighting campaign in the course of which he established beyond peradventure the shame of municipal corruption to such a degree that even the gangsters would be chagrined. He established nothing and maybe there is nothing to establish.

got to rowing among themselves which made them ludicrous. Into this situation stepped John Roosevelt, a son of the late and lamented Franklin D. Roosevelt. John, unlike his father and brothers, calls himself a Republican and has ambitions to political glory thereby. At any rate, Republicans in New York never heard of him before as belonging to them but there is no rule against it.

However, like most Roosevelt, he is in a hurry to take over and those who have spent years trying to keep the show on the road wonder how he came in. At any rate they feel that he might take his turn at the end of the line like anybody else. So that is one fight.

Another is that Sen. Jacob Javits, having shocked the country by his sponsorship of the astonishing appointment of Maxwell Gluck to be Ambassador to Ceylon, has been insisting that a pal of his, Samuel Roman, be made Postmaster, which is a good job that for one reason or another has too long been vacant. Most Republicans are opposed to Roman for this or that reason, some of which may be valid. So to clarify their opposition, they propose that Mrs. Caroline Simon be given the post as a reward for getting more votes than anybody else on the Republican ticket.

Mrs. Simon is a do-gooder and very popular and it is difficult to see how anyone can oppose her, because she is also very efficient or is that an objectionable quality for a Post Office appointment?

Another fight is over the governorship. Republican candidates are proliferating like the stars in the heavens. Several millionaires are mentioned, in the hope that the party might get some money. Also, former Attorney General Brownell is mentioned. Also some suggest Benjamin Javits, the elder and smart brother of Sen. Jacob Javits. Put it as you wish, if the Republicans continue to quarrel, it is likely that the Democrat, Averell Harriman, will be re-elected.

In the aforementioned states, the Democrats are not quarreling.

What's In a Name? Nowhere Road Still Leads to Nowhere

By GROVER BRINKMAN
Central Press Association Correspondent

MANCHESTER, N. H.— Changing a street name recently brought about a heated debate here. A group of merchants on Kosciusko St., so named only a few days before, wanted the name of the street changed back to the more familiar Birch St. They contended Kosciusko was too difficult to pronounce, equally hard to spell.

"Ha!" snorted representatives of Polish clubs and societies in Manchester. It was no more difficult to pronounce than Winipecaukee, Pemigwasset, Uncanoonuc or a score of other Indian names used to designate streets in New Hampshire.

The Kosciusko advocates had made their point, and the name remained.

Though Kosciusko St. is a more difficult name than Birch St. it is nothing compared to some street names used in other major cities. New Orleans, for example, has Tchoupitoulas St. Strangers to Oakland, Calif., well could struggle attempting to pronounce Ygnacio Ave., while Tonyawatha terrace is typical of the tongue-twisting street names in Madison, Wis.

The national situation is getting worse, for street names such as Oak, Pine and Water simply are not so popular as they once were. The big population shift to the suburbs has created a demand for more exclusive-sounding names, such as Lagomarsino road, Kinnick Avenue and Lychestine way. It seems property values can almost be measured by the length of the street name, the names striking an average around seven letters, according to a recent survey.

IN FACT, A WELL known Chicago realtor says the name of the street on which a house is located "has a definite effect on the value of your house. A $20,000 house on Oak St. has much more sale value on Briarcliffe Drive."

North, south, east or west, the trend seems to be the same, and the number of complicated, high-sounding street names has grown to be legion. Motorists coming into a strange city invariably find a few streets difficult to pronounce and several others that are even more difficult to find. Motorists who are unfamiliar with the names and locations of street signs feel they are lost in a civilization that, in its hurry, somehow omitted directional guide posts.

However, hope for the lost, confused motorist has not vanished. Years ago, Pierre Charles L'Enfant, the French engineer who designed Washington, D. C., must have foreseen the plight of harassed visitors to the capital. L'Enfant devised a simple plan with most streets laid out at right angles to one another. An equally uncomplicated street name system comprised of letters and numbers was used to name the streets, and, as a result, the stranger has little difficulty finding an address in Washington.

A Pittsburgh resident recently suggested a similar system for that city, but the confusion that would result from renaming all streets defeated the plan in its conception. Pittsburgh has some jaw-breaking street names, which the strange motorist stumbles over. The natives, however, don't seem to mind.

If America's street names sometimes are headaches, its place names are even more complex. Take, for instance, Peculiar, Mo. Or Roachtown, Ill.

Why? If there are any frogs in Frogtown, Ill., they are not noticeable. Odd, Va., is very ordinary; and Accident, Md., is no accident. If you trace back into the early

Ohio State Enrollment Now Totals 22,615

COLUMBUS (AP)—Fall quarter enrollment at Ohio State University totals 22,615, the registrar's office reports.

The enrollment represents a slight increase over the fall quarter of 1956 when 22,470 were registered. Enrollment for the 1955 fall quarter was 21,744.

Included in the official enrollment are 256 students at the branch campuses—174 at Marion and 82 at Newark.

lore of these spots, there always is a reason for the odd name.

Our neighbor to the north, Canada, isn't immune to unusual place names, either. Newfoundland has a such quaint place-names as Horse Chops and Topsail. Alberta offers such oddities of nomenclature as Medicine Hat, Seven Persons, Bely Butte, Keg River, Driftpile, Nightingale, Chin, Owlseye, and Cooking Lake.

When we stop being original in naming our cities, streets and rivers, we borrow from history. No less than 169 places within U. S. borders bear the name Washington; 86 of Jefferson; 132 of Jackson; 71 of Monroe, and 62 of Harrison. Lincoln, Grant, Hoover and others of more recent age, also come in for their share of place-names.

Clark county, Georgia, tops the list of "peculiarities" with a road named Nowhere, and a town of the same name. Everyone there knows Nowhere road leads to Nowhere. But try to explain this to the tourist!

Military Studying Use of Ohio Roads

COLUMBUS (AP)—The military in the future may use Ohio roads to carry some of its rockets and airplane fuselages, the Ohio Department of Highways says.

Charles M. Noble, Ohio's highway chief, said military men met with him and Capt. D. W. Unkle, enforcement chief of the State Highway Patrol, to discuss truck use of roads.

Unkle said there were inquiries about making shipments 74 feet long and 10 feet wide. Such a shipment would require a special permit. Ohio law requires trailers to be no longer than 50 feet nor wider than eight feet.

They are accused in the holdup slaying of Eldon Shoup, 25, of Alliance Feb. 7.

Thursday night, after four hours of deliberation and six deadlocked ballots, a jury of eight men and four women was discharged by Common Pleas Judge George N. Graham. They told the judge all but one of them felt they could never agree.

"Mary Haworth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am not yet 45—most people think I look younger than I am. I dress well, have kept my figure, and have a teen-age son. But I am a widow—which seems to be the problem.

I go out with friends whenever I have the opportunity; but such opportunities are few. I enjoy music, reading, theater; but it's always with women. I am depressed on weekend, but I love my job during the week.

Yes, I go to church and participate in such activities as are available to women like myself. I am active also in my professional groups.

Right after my husband died three years ago, after a long illness that had exhausted me, there were many invitations from friends usually dinner for myself and my son (nobody else included). Now I have none of these.

If I meet a man on my own, who shows some interest, I have reason to be apprehensive, because of what experience I've had with them.

Do one's friends always ignore the problems of a widow? Of course my son very much needs male companionship. What can I do?

DEAR B.K.: Years ago, when I was a girl reporter interviewing a man of great wealth, who had made it from scratch, I asked him what is the secret of success.

He said: "If you wish to pick blackberries, you've got to go where blackberries grow. If you want to sail a big ship, you've got to go in deep water."

In other words, you don't succeed by wishing without acting. If you want the friendship of men on acceptable terms, plus opportunities to marry again, you've got to put yourself in circulation where eligible men are available. And it happens that the cards are stacked heavily against you in the respect, in the town from which you write.

Beginning as far back as World War I, your city has been mustering a rising population of marriageable women in all age brackets, as compared to a dwindling local aggregate of eligible males.

Moreover, to reduce your chances even more, the town has become a mate-hunting scene for well-to-do mature-age widows of distinguished rating, as well as for clever, attractive, ambitious young career women, who make it their business to search out and cultivate worthwhile men, by a consistent program of selective hospitality.

You'd have to be an extraordinary widow, of the obscure variety—on the one hand so winsome and diverting that you'd be a prize extra woman, when an anxious hostess needs such help and, on the other hand, so subtle, politic and wise that you evoke no jealousy in wives—if you were to get any consistent inclusion thereabouts, in the social programming of married folk.

As for what to do, there is no magic solution. Nobody's advice is going to deliver the ready-made answer. It must be engineered by you—by a campaign of study, prayer and foresighted endeavor.

As a start, you might read Dr. Clifford R. Adams' book "How to Pick a Mate" (Dutton publishers), which includes, among other items, a list of "the 20 best cities" for mate-seeking women.

Ohio Recorder Official Raps O'Neill's Veto

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Recorder's Assn. is the only one of four groups of county officials meeting here to officially comment on Gov. C. William O'Neill's veto of an act to increase fees for county offices.

Mrs. Miriam Yeazell, Clark County recorder and chairman of the association's Legislative Committee, reported Thursday on the governor's action.

She did not criticize the veto, but said: "We thought everything was under control," and that "no one dreamed of a veto."

However, members of the associations admitted there was "considerable" unofficial criticism as they talked to each other outside the meeting rooms.

The newly formed past president's group of the recorders elected Earl R. Hogan, of Hamilton president and Mrs. Yeazell secretary.

William Marsh of Ross County was elected president of the County Auditors' Assn. Earl Lautenschlager of Wayne County was Hanson of Madison County, re-elected treasurer, and Donald R. Kinsey of Tuscarawas County, re-elected secretary.

Other associations meeting at the Deshler Hilton Hotel are the Ohio Clerk of Courts Assn. and the Ohio Sealers Assn. Both of these and the recorders hold elections today.

Major Herbert O. Yardley, who broke the Japanese code in World War II when he was in the U. S. Army, is now an authority on poker playing.

Shoplifting Ring Broken By Columbus Arrests

COLUMBUS (AP)—A statewide shoplifting ring was reported broken here with the arrest of three Cleveland people. The arrests came shortly after some $1,000 worth of merchandise was stolen from three downtown department stores here.

The three are Willie Williams, 24; Mrs. Lillian E. Taylor, 33, and Mrs. Shirley J. Williams, 23. The Williamses are not related.

'Unlucky' Day Ignored

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (AP)—The Rhode Island Legislature will meet in special session Friday, Dec. 13. The last special session was held Friday, Nov. 13, 1953.

Sweetheart Slayer Slated for Tests

DAYTON (AP)—A 31-year-old Dayton man charged with first degree murder in the death of his two teen-age sweethearts has been sent to Lima State Hospital for 30 days observation.

Robert Crites was ordered to the hospital by Common Pleas Judge Charles Lee Mills.

Police said Crites admitted shooting to death Mrs. Deanna Jean Fouch, 16, and her roommate Beverly Ann Eldred, 17, on a county road near here Nov. 10. Officers said Crites told them he did not want his wife to know he was going with the girls.

Though Kosciusko St. is a more difficult name than Birch St. it is nothing compared to some street names used in other major cities. New Orleans, for example, has Tchoupitoulas St. Strangers to Oakland, Calif., well could strangle attempting to pronounce Ygnacio Ave., while Tonyawatha terrace is typical of the tongue-twisting street names in Madison, Wis.

The national situation is getting worse, for street names such as Oak, Pine and Water simply are not so popular as they once were. The big population shift to the suburbs has created a demand for more exclusive-sounding names, such as Lagomarsino road, Kinnick Avenue and Lychestine way. It seems property values can almost be measured by the length of the street name, the names striking an average around seven letters, according to a recent survey.

IN FACT, A WELL known Chicago realtor says the name of the street on which a house is located "has a definite effect on the value of your house. A $20,000 house on Oak St. has much more sale value on Briarcliffe Drive."

North, south, east or west, the trend seems to be the same, and the number of complicated, high-sounding street names has grown to be legion. Motorists coming into a strange city invariably find a few streets difficult to pronounce and several others that are even more difficult to find. Motorists who are unfamiliar with the names and locations of street signs feel they are lost in a civilization that, in its hurry, somehow omitted directional guide posts.

However, hope for the lost, confused motorist has not vanished. Years ago, Pierre Charles L'Enfant, the French engineer who designed Washington, D. C., must have foreseen the plight of harassed visitors to the capital. L'Enfant devised a simple plan with most streets laid out at right angles to one another. An equally uncomplicated street name system comprised of letters and numbers was used to name the streets, and, as a result, the stranger has little difficulty finding an address in Washington.

A Pittsburgh resident recently suggested a similar system for that city, but the confusion that would result from renaming all streets defeated the plan in its conception. Pittsburgh has some jaw-breaking street names, which the strange motorist stumbles over. The natives, however, don't seem to mind.

If America's street names sometimes are headaches, its place names are even more complex. Take, for instance, Peculiar, Mo. or Roachtown, Ill.

Why? If there are any frogs in Frogtown, Ill., they are not noticeable. Odd, Va., is very ordinary; and Accident, Md., is no accident. If you trace back into the early

"Mary Hawthorth's Mail"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am not yet 45—most people think I look younger than I am. I dress well, have kept my figure, and have a teen-age son. But I am a widow—which seems to be the problem.

I go out with friends whenever I have the opportunity; but such opportunities are few. I enjoy music, reading, theater; but it's always with women. I am depressed on weekend, but I love my job during the week.

Yes, I go to church and participate in such activities as are available to women like myself. I am active also in my professional groups.

Right after my husband died three years ago, after a long illness that had exhausted me, there were many invitations from friends usually dinner for myself and my son (nobody else included). Now I have none of these.

Do one's friends always ignore the problems of a widow? Of course my son very much needs male companionship. What can I do?

DEAR B.K.: Years ago, when I was a girl reporter interviewing a man of great wealth, who had made it from scratch, I asked him what is the secret of success.

He said: "If you wish to pick blackberries, you've got to go where blackberries grow. If you want to sail a big ship, you've got to go in deep water."

In other words, you don't succeed by wishing without acting. If you want the friendship of men on acceptable terms, plus opportunities to marry again, you've got to put yourself in circulation where eligible men are available. And it happens that the cards are stacked heavily against you in the respect, in the town from which you write.

Beginning as far back as World War I, your city has been mustering a rising population of marriageable women in all age brackets, as compared to a dwindling local aggregate of eligible males.

Moreover, to reduce your chances even more, the town has become a mate-hunting scene for well-to-do mature-age widows of distinguished rating, as well as for clever, attractive, ambitious young career women, who make it their business to search out and cultivate worthwhile men, by a consistent program of selective hospitality.

You'd have to be an extraordinary widow, of the obscure variety—on the one hand so winsome and diverting that you'd be a prize extra woman, when an anxious hostess needs such help, and, on the other hand, so subtle, politic and wise that you evoke no jealousy in wives—if you were to get any consistent inclusion thereabouts, in the social programming of married folk.

As for what to do, there is no magic solution. Nobody's advice is going to deliver the ready-made answer. It must be engineered by you—by a campaign of study, prayer and foresighted endeavor.

As a start, you might read Dr. Clifford R. Adams' book "How to Pick a Mate" (Dutton publishers), which includes, among other items, a list of "the 20 best cities" for mate-seeking women.

Ohio Recorder Official Raps O'Neill's Veto

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Recorder's Assn. is the only one of four groups of county officials meeting here to officially comment on Gov. C. William O'Neill's veto of an act to increase fees for county offices.

Mrs. Miriam Yeazell, Clark County recorder and chairman of the association's Legislative Committee, reported Thursday on the governor's action.

She did not criticize the veto, but said: "We thought everything was under control," and that "no one dreamed of a veto."

However, members of the associations admitted there was "considerable" unofficial criticism as they talked to each other outside the meeting rooms.

The newly formed past president's group of the recorders elected Earl R. Hogan, of Hamilton president and Mrs. Yeazell secretary.

William Marsh of Ross County was elected president of the County Auditors' Assn., Earl Lantenschlager of Wayne County was Hanson of Madison County, re-elected treasurer, and Donald R. Kinsey of Tuscarawas County, re-elected secretary.

Other associations meeting at the Desler Hilton Hotel are the Ohio Clerk of Courts Assn. and the Ohio Sealers Assn. Both of these and the recorders hold elections today.

Cut the crusts from slices of bread and then spread the slices with butter. Cut into narrow strips and brown in a slow oven. Serve with soups and salads.

Alternate small mushroom caps, squares of bacon and chicken livers on skewers. Brush with melted butter and broil. Good served with chutney sauce.

You can steam a fish by wrapping it in cheesecloth and placing it on a rack over two inches of boiling water in a kettle.

Fine diced celery and chili sauce are good additions to mayonnaise to be used on a shrimp salad.

Your youngsters will get a big thrill if, on a bad-weather day when they are indoors, you make a batch of caramels. Let them cut waxed paper in strips and use it for wrapping the caramels, twirling the ends. Each piece of candy should be wrapped separately to keep it from getting sticky.

Small fry enjoy a combination of peanut butter and honey in a sandwich or as a spread for toast.

Chocolate Candy A Good Dessert

By IDA BAILEY ALLEN (King Features Syndicate)

"Almost everybody loves candy but, when eaten between meals, it dulls normal appetites," I observed. "Candy for dessert is the perfect solution. I find the best way is to serve it in place of dessert."

"I notice you did not suggest candy and a dessert, Madame," chuckled the Chef.

"No, but I suggest a single piece after dinner for children who have eaten their meal and taken their milk; or for adults who have no overweight problem."

"Chocolate miniatures rate only 24 calories apiece, a chocolate cream averages 51, and a small chocolate mint is 39 calories."

"By the way, it's smart to eat chocolate right from their paper cups, a dainty way to protect the fingers."

COFFEE AND CANDY — A dish of candy, chocolates preferably and a pot of steaming coffee combine to make a pleasurable ending to a meal.

Officers Elected At Class Banquet

The Willing Workers Class of Fountains Evangelical United Brethren Church met at Wardell Party Home for a banquet Monday evening. Before the guests were seated they sang the "Gloria Patri".

After the dinner the class history was read by Mrs. Jacob Glitt. The history included the names of the charter members, five of whom were present. They were Mrs. Roy Bowman, Mrs. Ethel Klingensmith, Mrs. Turney Kraft, Mrs. C. W. Kraft, and Miss Ethel Brobst.

A moment of silence was observed for the late Miss Huldah Leist the class's first teacher. Devotions were conducted by the Rev. Wilbur Crase who also offered prayer. He read the Christmas story from Luke for his scripture selection.

Food Chocolate Candy A Good Dessert

By IDA BAILEY ALLEN (King Features Syndicate)

"Almost everybody loves candy but, when eaten between meals, it dulls normal appetites," I observed. "Candy for dessert is the perfect solution. I find the best way is to serve it in place of dessert, 'as is' with coffee or tea, or along with fresh grapes or a pear."

"I notice you did not suggest candy and a dessert, Madame," chuckled the Chef.

"No, but I suggest a single piece after dinner for children who have eaten their meal and taken their milk; or for adults who have no overweight problem."

"Chocolate miniatures rate only 24 calories apiece, a chocolate cream averages 51, and a small chocolate mint is 39 calories."

"By the way, it's smart to eat chocolate right from their paper cups, a dainty way to protect the fingers."

Household Hints

Small fry enjoy a combination of peanut butter and honey in a sandwich or as a spread for toast.

Finely diced celery and chili sauce are good additions to mayonnaise to be used on a shrimp salad.

Your youngsters will get a big thrill if, on a bad-weather day when they are indoors, you make a batch of caramels. Let them cut waxed paper in strips and use it for wrapping the caramels, twirling the ends. Each piece of candy should be wrapped separately to keep it from getting sticky.

You can steam a fish by wrapping it in cheesecloth and placing it on a rack over two inches of boiling water in a kettle.

Alternate small mushroom caps, squares of bacon and chicken livers on skewers. Brush with melted butter and broil. Good served with chutney sauce.

That I May Know Christ

PAUL DETERMINES TO INCREASE IN THE KNOWLEDGE OF CHRIST

Scripture—Philippians 3; 2:25-29; 4:18

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

A PROBLEM has arisen among the church members, causing unrest. Some contended that "in order to have a valid hope of salvation through the Gospel," they must submit to Moses' law and be circumcised. Paul writes the Philippians that this is not true, and says "For we are the circumcision, which worship God in the spirit, and rejoice in Christ Jesus, and have no confidence in the flesh."

Then Paul writes of his own life:

"Circumcised the eighth day, of the stock of Israel, of the tribe of Benjamin, an Hebrew of the Hebrews; as touching the law, a Pharisee; concerning zeal, persecuting the church; touching the righteousness which is of the law, blameless."

Paul never forgot and ceased to mourn over his persecution of the Christians, and it made him very humble, sometimes doubting, it seems, that he should be called an Apostle. Brought up in a home in which the old manners and religious customs were cherished, he was a "pharisee of pharisees," and a Pharisee according to the law. Having attained a secure and enviable position among his people, he changed completely after his vision of Jesus, and devoted that same zeal in serving Christ, writing, "But what things were gain to me, those I counted loss for Christ."

"Yea, doubtless, and I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord; for whom I have suffered the loss of all things, and count them but dung, that I may win Christ."

Then Paul writes that he means to devote himself to the contemplation of Christ and His Gospel. "That I may know Him, and the power of His resurrection, and the fellowship of His sufferings, being made comfortable unto His death, if by any means I might attain unto the resurrection of the dead."

Dr. Wilbur M. Smith suggests that all the classes might be reminded that when they have to pass an important examination in school, whether it be primary, high school or college, they must give up everything else and devote themselves to study of the subject assigned them.

All the classes might also be urged to study carefully the life of Christ on earth and ask themselves, when puzzled by a problem, what Jesus would have done in these circumstances and try to please Him by their actions.

Paul writes his thanks for gifts sent him by the Philippians and brought to him by Epaphroditus, "my brother, and companion in labor, and fellow-soldier, but your messenger." This man had been very ill and not expected to recover. But he did and was sent by Paul to the Philippians church. (Philippians 2:25-29; 4:18.)

Paul asks the Philippians to lead righteous lives and writes to them: "This one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth for those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

Chief Chaplain Says GIs Increase Interest in Religion

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON (AP) — There has been a great upsurge of religion among our service personnel all over the world, says the Army chief of chaplains, Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Ryan, chairman of the Armed Services Chaplains Board. "Our religious program in the Army has never been more strong than now," Chaplain Ryan, a veteran of more than 29 years in the Army's 182-year-old corps of "silent men," told a women's luncheon meeting here.

Through its character guidance service, stepped up shortly after World War II, when Chaplain Ryan said morality among the armed forces "hit an all-time low," the chaplain's service hopes a young man will return to civilian life as good a man, or better.

The strength of the program, he said, is the corps of dedicated, trained chaplains and the "enlightened policy of the Department of the Army—it's intelligent attention to things religious."

Some 1,200 Army chaplains are currently on duty at posts around the world. Of these 30 per cent are Roman Catholic, 5 per cent Jewish and 65 per cent Protestant. These religious men, together with even larger numbers in the Air Force and Navy, are closer to the service man than his civilian pastor, Father Ryan said.

"They share a close comradeship. Both are in uniform, are subject to the same discipline, the same loneliness. This helps to break down the formal atmosphere of the rector, encourages a less formal approach."

The Army has some 900 chapels and churches over the world and each year builds 12 to 15 new ones. It maintains retreat houses in Germany (one a former rest center for Field Marshal Goering's Nazi pilots during World War II), in Japan and Korea. Over a three-year period ending last July, more than 30,000 retreatants had passed through these centers.

"Their few days of concentrated prayer and meditation has a decided effect on the men," Chaplain Ryan said.

"Tell it to the chaplain is common advice. We kind of like that. It gives us a kind of bond with our men. We realize our tremendous responsibility to the country and the mothers of the country. America produces many superior things. Our youth is the greatest. Our charge is to keep that youth spiritually fit."

Chaplain Ryan, born in Minnesota, was with the Army in Africa and in Anzio, Italy, during World War II. He was honored for valor by the United States and has decorations from all countries where he has been stationed.

That I May Know Christ

PAUL DETERMINES TO INCREASE IN THE KNOWLEDGE OF CHRIST

Scripture—Philippians 3; 8:25-29; 4:18

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

A PROBLEM has arisen among the church members, causing unrest. Some contend that "in order to have a valid hope of salvation through the Gospel," they must submit to Moses' law and be circumcised. Paul writes the Philippians that this is not true, and says "For we are the circumcision, which worship God in the spirit, and rejoice in Christ Jesus, and have no confidence in the flesh."

Then Paul writes of his own life.

"Circumcised the eighth day, of the stock of Israel, of the tribe of Benjamin, an Hebrew of the Hebrews; as touching the law, a Pharisee; Concerning zeal, persecuting the church; touching the righteousness which is the law, fered the loss of all things, and do count them but dung, that I may win Christ."

Then Paul writes that he means to devote himself to the contemplation of Christ and His Gospel. "That I may know Him, and the power of His resurrection, and the fellowship of His sufferings, being made comfortable unto His death, if by any means I might attain unto the resurrection of the dead."

Dr. Wilbur M. Smith suggests that all the classes might be reminded that when they have to pass an important examination in school, whether it be primary, high school or college, they must give up everything else and devote themselves to study of the subject assigned them.

All the classes might also be urged to study carefully the life

blameless."

Paul never forgot and ceased to mourn over his persecution of the Christians, and it made him very humble, sometimes doubting, it seems, that he should be called an Apostle.

Brought up in a home in which the old manners and religious customs were cherished, he was a "Hebrew of Hebrews," and a Pharisee according to the law. Having attained a secure and enviable position among his people, he changed completely after his vision of Jesus, and devoted that same zeal in serving Christ, writing, "But what things were gain to me, those I counted loss for Christ."

Chief Chaplain Says GIs Increase Interest in Religion

By JANE EADS

WASHINGTON (AP) — There has been a great upsurge of religion among our service personnel all over the world, says the Army chief of chaplains, Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Ryan, chairman of the Armed Services Chaplains Board.

"Our religious program in the Army has never been more strong than now," Chaplain Ryan, a veteran of more than 29 years in the Army's 182-year-old corps of "silent men," told a women's luncheon meeting here.

Through its character guidance service, stepped up shortly after World War II, when Chaplain Ryan said morality among the armed forces "hit an all-time low," the chaplain's service hopes a young man will return to civilian life as good a man, or better.

The strength of the program, he said, is the corps of dedicated, trained chaplains and the "enlightened policy of the Department of the Army—it's intelligent attention to things religious."

Some 1,200 Army chaplains are currently on duty at posts around the world. Of these 30 per cent are Roman Catholic, 5 per cent Jewish and 65 per cent Protestant. These religious men, together with even larger numbers in the Air Force and Navy, are closer to the service man than his civilian pastor, Father Ryan said.

"They share a close comradeship. Both are in uniform, are subject to the same discipline, the same loneliness. This helps to break down the formal atmosphere of the rectory, encourages a less formal approach."

The Army has some 900 chapels and churches over the world and each year builds 12 to 15 new ones. It maintains retreat houses in Germany (one a former rest center for Field Marshal Goering's Nazi pilots during World War II), in Japan and Korea. Over a three-year period ending last July, more than 30,000 retreatants had passed through these centers.

"Their few days of concentrated prayer and meditation has a decided effect on the men," Chaplain Ryan said.

"Tell it to the chaplain is common advice. We kind of like that. It gives us a kind of bond with our men. We realize our tremendous responsibility to the country and the mothers of the country. America produces many superior things. Our youth is the greatest. Our charge is to keep that youth spiritually fit."

Chaplain Ryan, born in Minnesota, was with the Army in Africa and in Anzio, Italy, during World War II. He was honored for valor by the United States and has decorations from all countries where he has been stationed.

1958 Outlook Very Rosy to Some Experts

'Quite a Number' See
Over-All Gains Ahead
For Nation's Economy

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Neither a soggy stock market nor the qualms of some bankers can stay the business optimists today in their year-end practice of foreseeing a better year dawning.

Quite a number see 1958 showing an over-all gain for the economy. Even more believe their own industry or company will forge ahead. Let's push aside the gloom of the many and look today at some who are more cheery.

The gross national product—the dollar total of the nation's output of goods and services—will climb from this year's estimated 435 billion dollars to a whopping 460 billion in 1958 in the opinion of W. W. Morris, director of market research for Westinghouse Electric. He adds that his own industry should gain, with heavy capital goods showing a moderate increase and appliance sales up 4 per cent.

William C. Carlin, economist for Republic Steel, sees the capital goods industry today in a fairly shallow trough between two enormous waves of expansion.

The nation can move into 1958 with the bounce of optimism in its step, says J. O. Wright, Ford Motor Co. vice president who is general manager of its Ford division. He believes the Pentagon, which has been holding back because of an economy wave, will hand out a flood of new defense orders early in the year.

Not to be outdone by this, Wright's opposite number at General Motors — E. N. Cole, a vice president and general manager of the Chevrolet division — says the over-all strength and vitality of the economy should support an "extremely strong automobile market."

The aluminum industry, currently with an over supply of metal on its hands — is also optimistic of the future. Richard S. Reynolds Jr., president of Reynolds Metals, says new uses being developed will boost consumption by 1½ billion pounds within the next three years, while increased consumption for existing products will add another billion to the total.

William Bynum, president of Carrier Corp., says that a survey of 4,330 manufacturers by the National Assn. of Manufacturers of which he is a director, shows more than one third expecting increased sales next year and 45 per cent expecting them to be as good as this year.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York foresees only mild adjustments during the current business breather before a new spurt ahead. It expects construction activity to increase and looks for more military spending.

Privately, some New York bankers are forecasting a drop early in the year in the interest charges on business loans.

Death Scene In Amish Trial Is Detailed

MILLERSBURG, Ohio (AP)—The death scene in the slaying of a young Amish farmer was described in detail by the victim's father Thursday before the first degree murder trial of Eugene Cleo Peters adjourned for the weekend.

The father, Moses Coblentz, of near Mount Hope, told of how he was awakened the night of July 18 by a dog's bark and someone's shouts coming from his son's home 200 feet away.

He raced to the scene, Coblentz said, and there saw his son Paul, 25, lying on the floor. Paul was still breathing, the elder Coblentz testified.

Behind the body, the father continued, he saw Paul's wife Dora, screaming hysterically, her dress torn about her waist. Nearby, Coblentz said, the couple's 18-month-old daughter was crying.

Coblentz said he ran to a neighbor's house and called authorities. When he returned, he said, his son was still breathing and Dora was trying to wash blood away from a wound in Paul's shoulder.

The son died from his wounds, Coblentz said when he later confronted Peters in the Holmes County jail, Peters admitted the slaying because he "needed money."

Peters, 19, of Muscatine, Iowa and his companion, Michael Dumoulin, 20, of Wooster, are accused of shooting Coblentz during a robbery. Dumoulin will be tried in January.

Muskingum River Dam Program OK'd

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio Natural Resources Commission has recommended that the state accept an Army engineers' proposal for restoration of the 11 dams on the Muskingum River.

Under the proposal, the federal government would pay $235,000 for either breaching or repairing the dams with the state paying the balance to complete restoration.

Under the recommendation of the commission, however, the state would accept this proposal "under protest." This would mean that under the state's acceptance, it would protest the inadequacy of the available funds, hoping that Congress would make available the necessary additional funds to complete restoration.

1958 Outlook Very Rosy to Some Experts

'Quite a Number' See
Over-All Gains Ahead
For Nation's Economy

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP)—Neither a soggy stock market nor the qualms of some bankers can stay the business optimists today in their year-end practice of foreseeing a better year dawning.

Quite a number see 1958 showing an over-all gain for the economy. Even more believe their own industry or company will forge ahead. Let's push aside the gloom of the many and look today at some who are more cheery.

The gross national product—the dollar total of the nation's output of goods and services—will climb from this year's estimated $35 billion dollars to a whopping $40 billion in 1958 in the opinion of W. W. Morris, director of market research for Westinghouse Electric. He adds that his own industry should gain, with heavy capital goods showing a moderate increase and appliance sales up 4 per cent.

William C. Carlin, economist for Republic Steel, sees the capital goods industry today in a fairly shallow trough between two enormous waves of expansion.

The nation can move into 1958 with the bounce of optimism in its step, says J. O. Wright, Ford Motor Co. vice president who is general manager of its Ford division. He believes the Pentagon, which has been holding back because of an economy wave, will hand out a flood of new defense orders early in the year.

Not to be outdone by this, Wright's opposite number at General Motors—E. N. Cole, a vice president and general manager of the Chevrolet division—says the over-all strength and vitality of the economy should support an "extremely strong automobile market."

The aluminum industry, currently with an over supply of metal on its hands—is also optimistic of the future. Richard S. Reynolds Jr., president of Reynolds Metals, says new uses being developed will boost consumption by 1 1/2 billion pounds within the next three years, while increased consumption for existing products will add another billion to the total.

William Bynum, president of Carrier Corp., says that a survey of 4,300 manufacturers by the National Assn. of Manufacturers of which he is a director, shows more than one third expecting increased sales next year and 45 per cent expecting them to be as good as this year.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York foresees only mild adjustments during the current business breather before a new spurt ahead. It expects construction activity to increase and looks for more military spending.

Privately, some New York bankers are forecasting a drop early in the year in the interest charges on business loans.

Death Scene In Amish Trial Is Detailed

MILLERSBURG, Ohio (AP)—The death scene in the slaying of a young Amish farmer was described in detail by the victim's father Thursday before the first degree murder trial of Eugene Cleo Peters adjourned for the weekend.

The father, Moses Coblenz, of near Mount Hope, told of how he was awakened the night of July 18 by a dog's bark and someone's shouts coming from his son's home 200 feet away.

He raced to the scene, Coblenz said, and there saw his son Paul, 25, lying on the floor. Paul was still breathing, the elder Coblenz testified.

Behind the body, the father continued, he saw Paul's wife Dora, screaming hysterically, her dress torn about her waist. Nearby, Coblenz said, the couple's 18-month-old daughter was crying.

Coblenz said he ran to a neighbor's house and called authorities. When he returned, he said, his son was still breathing and Dora was trying to wash blood away from a wound in Paul's shoulder.

The son died from his wounds, Coblenz said when he later confronted Peters in the Holmes County jail, Peters admitted the slaying because he "needed money."

Peters, 19, of Muscatine, Iowa and his companion, Michael Dumoulin, 20, of Wooster, are accused of shooting Coblenz during a robbery. Dumoulin will be tried in January.

Betting Bookkeeper Files Guilty Plea

CLEVELAND (AP)—A 46-year-old woman bookkeeper who admitted stealing $96,000 from her employer to bet on the horses pleaded guilty to embezzlement Thursday in common pleas court.

Judge B. N. Nicola withheld sentence for Mrs. Louise Madigan, who told him she was unable to make restitution.

Mrs. Madigan admitted to police last July that she had taken the money over a three-year period from the petty cash fund of the law firm of M. B. and J. J. Johnson, where she had been employed 10 years.

She said she had bet the money with a bookie, but police have been unable to find the man whom she has identified.

Muskingum River Dam Program OK'd

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio Natural Resources Commission has recommended that the state accept an Army engineers' proposal for restoration of the 11 dams on the Muskingum River.

Under the proposal, the federal government would pay $235,000 for either breaching or repairing the dams with the state paying the balance to complete restoration.

Carolina State Looming Large As Cage Power

This May Be Season
Of Comeback for
Atlantic Coast Quint

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
North Carolina State's Wolfpack
the perennial Atlantic Coast kingpins until Frank McGuire's North Carolina Tar Heels came along to dominate the league and win the national title, may make this the season for a comeback.

At least the Wolfpack started out on the right foot in the Conference competition. Thursday night, they turned back Wake Forest 62-51 on a late drive that increased a slim two-point lead to 15 during a four-minute stretch.

The slim college basketball schedule also was highlighted by Minnesota's 67-66 victory over Iowa State and Georgia Tech's
73-62 triumph over Alabama.

In other games, Tulsa opened
by downing New Mexico A&M
62-56; Richmond beat Virginia
Tech 72-62 in a Southern Conference game; Nebraska downed Wyoming 77-66; Princeton defeated Lafayette 75-72; St. John's of Brooklyn rode over Roanoke 86-62 and Louisville walloped Georgetown, Ky. 74-54.

North Carolina State, which had a 7-7 Conference mark and was 15-11 overall last season, was ranked behind North Carolina,
Maryland and Duke, in the 1957-1958 pre-season estimates. But the Wolfpack appeared improved
against Wake Forest. Particularly impressive was Bob McGillivray,

a 6-4 junior, who scored 20 points
—nine during State's pivotal rally.
Minnesota's youthful Gophers
spanked Southern Methodist in their opener Monday night, refused to get excited in the face of Iowa State's relentless ball
hawking. Whitey Johnson's driving field goal with 15 seconds left clinched matters. Lyle Frahm had 21 points for the losers.

Georgia Tech jumped off to a big lead behind the shooting of Bud Blemker and Terry Randall. Randall wound up with 21 points.

Richmond thwarted Virginia
Tech's offense with a sliding zone defense in the second half. Tech had a four-point lead at the half.

Tulsa, a Missouri Valley club,
had its hands full with the New Mexico Aggies, who lost to Rice
and Arkansas earlier in the week.
Roger Wendel, who led the Tulsa scorers with 16 points, insured the victory with a pair of free throws with a little more than a minute remaining.

Cincy Pro Cagers Nearing Leaders

PHILADELPHIA — The Cincinnati Royals, occupants of the Western Division cellar of the National Basketball Assn. when their franchise was in Rochester last season, have moved into a contending position for the lead.

The transplanted Royals downed
the Detroit Pistons 109-99 and the first place St. Louis Hawks bowed to the Warriors 124-109 in a doubleheader here Thursday night.

The victory enabled runnerup
Cincinnati to climb within a game
and a half of the Hawks. Philadelphia's triumph put them in a second-place tie with idle Syracuse
in the Eastern Division.

Annual All-Ohio Grid Team Selected in Poll of 300

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Ohio
draped the mantle of gridiron
greatness over its scholastic stars
today. The best of the Buckeye boys have been awarded berths on The 1957 Associated Press all-state high school team.

They come from everywhere—
big schools and little schools, winning schools and losing schools—
but each selection battled his way to the top on sheer individual brilliance.

In keeping with the high school
style of unlimited substitutions, offensive and defensive teams
were chosen — although many of the outstanding stars are "both way" players. Selections were made with the aid of more than 300 coaches, sports writers, sportscasters and officials. The all-star team is recognized as official by
the Ohio High School Football
Coaches Assn.

Members on The Associated Press squad will help the senior members along the way in the race for berths on the North-South squad. They will be selected this weekend by the coaches for the August game in Canton.

Bob Ferguson of Troy, block-
busting fullback chosen as the state's No. 1 offensive star, was the vote-getting standout and was awarded the captaincy of the first team. The second team captaincy went to Cleveland Benedictine's great halfback, George Sebek, who just missed a first string job.
Charley Young of Van Wert—who has never played in a losing game—grabbed the third team leadership.

The first team offensive unit,
featuring explosive backs behind
a huge but mobile line, is an all-senior combination. Only Massillon was able to place two men on it, the Tigers winning an end berth with Clyde Childers, and the
jamin. The latter, a 160-pounder who stands only five-eight, has East Liverpool's George Hale as his running mate. Hale, on a team which won only three of 10 games, averaged nine yards per carry,
and scored 13 touchdowns and three extra points. Benjamin, with a 7.9-yard average, counted 17
times. He was named the most valuable player in Stark County.

Calling signals for the fleet
backs is Tom King of Leo Strang's
once-beaten East Cleveland Shaw
team. King, a straight "A" student, is an outstanding ball-handler,
passer and runner, and led the Lake Erie League in scoring. He was a 48-minute player.

Ken Skufka, Cleveland Benedictine's 245-pound tackle, named the state's No. 1 offensive lineman, anchors the offensive line. Opposite him is Pete Williams, Dayton Chaminade. Les Traver of Alliance took the end berth opposite Childers.

Owensby Pearson of Akron
South repeated at guard, where
he is paired with Jerry Harbin
of Marion Harding's Presidents.
The center is 260-pound Dave
Owen of Northridge, near Dayton, who moves like a player weighing 100 pounds less.

The selections were made from among some 20,000 boys on the state squads, and a player must be a standout to land among even
the honorable mentions.

Following is the complete tabulation of the all-state team:

Carolina State Looming Large As Cage Power

This May Be Season
Of Comeback for
Atlantic Coast Quint

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
North Carolina State's Wolfpack
the perennial Atlantic Coast king-
pins until Frank McGuire's North Carolina Tar Heels came along to dominate the league and win the national title, may make this the season for a comeback.

At least the Wolfpack started
out on the right foot in the Conference competition. Thursday night, they turned back Wake Forest 62-51 on a late drive that increased a slim two-point lead to 15 during a four-minute stretch.

The slim college basketball
schedule also was highlighted by Minnesota's 67-66 victory over
Iowa State and Georgia Tech's
73-62 triumph over Alabama.

In other games, Tulsa opened
by downing New Mexico A&M
62-56; Richmond beat Virginia
Tech 72-62 in a Southern Conference game; Nebraska downed Wyoming 77-66; Princeton defeated Lafayette 75-72; St. John's of Brooklyn rode over Roanoke 86-62 and Louisville wallpiped Georgetown, Ky. 74-54.

North Carolina State, which had a 7-7 Conference mark and was 15-11 over-all last season, was ranked behind North Carolina,
Maryland and Duke, in the 1957-
1958 pre-season estimates. But the
against Wake Forest. Particularly impressive was Bob MacGillivray, a 6-4 junior, who scored 20 points
— nine during State's pivotal rally.

Minnesota's youthful Gophers
spanked Southern Methodist in their opener Monday night, refused to get excited in the face
of Iowa State's relentless ball
ing field goal with 15 seconds left clinched matters. Lyle Frahm had 21 points for the losers.

Georgia Tech jumped off to a big lead behind the shooting of Bud Blemker and Terry Randall. Randall wound up with 21 points.

Richmond thwarted Virginia
Tech's offense with a sliding zone
defense in the second half. Tech

Tulsa, a Missouri Valley club,
had its hands full with the New Mexico Aggies, who lost to Rice
and Arkansas earlier in the week.

Roger Wendel, who led the Tulsa
scorers with 16 points, insured the
victory with a pair of free throws with a little more than a minute
remaining.

Cincy Pro Cagers Nearing Leaders

PHILADELPHIA — The Cincinnati Royals, occupants of the Western Division cellar of the National Basketball Assn. when their franchise was in Rochester last season, have moved into a contending position for the lead.

The transplanted Royals downed
the Detroit Pistons 109-99 and the first place St. Louis Hawks bowed
to the Warriors 124-109 in a doubleheader here Thursday night.

The victory enabled runnerup
Cincinnati to climb within a game
and a half of the Hawks. Philadelphia's triumph put them in a second-place tie with idle Syracuse
in the Eastern Division.

ball tournament in 1958, UK athletic officials report.

SPORTS

The Circleville Herald, Friday Dec. 6, 1957 9
Circleville, Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Ohio
draped the mantle of gridiron
greatness over its scholastic stars
today. The best of the Buckeye boys have been awarded berths on The 1957 Associated Press all-state high school team.

They come from everywhere—
big schools and little schools, winning schools and losing schools—
but each selection battled his way to the top on sheer individual brilliance.

In keeping with the high school
style of unlimited substitutions,
offensive and defensive teams
were chosen — although many of the outstanding stars are "both way" players. Selections were made with the aid of more than 300 coaches, sports writers, sportscasters and officials. The all-star team is recognized as official by
the Ohio High School Football
Coaches Assn.

Members on The Associated Press squad will help the senior members along the way in the race for berths on the North-South squad. They will be selected this weekend by the coaches for the August game in Canton.

Bob Ferguson of Troy, block-
busting fullback chosen as the state's No. 1 offensive star, was
the vote-getting standout and was awarded the captaincy of the first team. The second team captaincy
went to Cleveland Benedictine's great halfback, George Sefcik, who just missed a first string job.
Charley Young of Van Wert—who has never played in a losing
game—grabbed the third team
leadership.

The first team offensive unit,
featuring explosive backs behind
a huge but mobile line, is an all-
senior combination. Only Massil-son was able to place two men
on it, the Tigers winning an end
jamin. The latter, a 160-pounder
who stands only five-eight, has been a star since his freshman year.

Richmond's George Hale as East Liverpool's mate. Hale, on a team which won only three of 10 games,
averaged nine yards per carry and scored 13 touchdowns, with three extra points. Benjamin, with a 7.9-yard average, counted 17
times. He was named the most valuable player in Stark County.
Calling signals for the fleet
backs is Tom King of Leo Strang's
once-beaten East Cleveland Shaw
team. King, a straight "A" student, is an outstanding ball-handler,
passer and runner, and led the Lake Erie League in scoring. He was a 48-minute player.

Ken Skufca, Cleveland Benedictine's 245-pound tackle, named the state's No. 1 offensive lineman, anchors the offensive line. Opposite him is Pete Williams, Dayton Chaminade. Les Traver of Alliance took the end berth opposite Childers.

Owensby Pearson of Akron
South repeated at guard, where
he is paired with Jerry Harbin
of Marion Harding's Presidents.
The center is 260 - pound Dave
Owen of Northridge, near Dayton,
who moves like a player weighing 100 pounds less.

The selections were made from among some 20,000 boys on the state squads, and a player must be a standout to land among even
the honorable mentions.

Following is the complete tabulation of the all-state team:

5 Ohio College Cage Outfits Collect Wins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Five Ohio college cage teams were in action Thursday night and all recorded victories. Four were home court wins, and Wilberforce edged out Oakland City College of Indiana 93-90 in the Hoosier state.
Wilberforce had to save off a last half rally by Oakland to post its victory. Abe Booker and Fletcher Powers led the victors with 30 and 28 points, respectively.

A growing basketball rivalry in southeastern Ohio added another chapter Thursday night when Ohio University coasted to a 92-71 victory over Marietta.

The Bobcats, who upset Indiana Monday, were only challenged once. The Pioneers knotted the score 21-21 during the first half.

Ohio Wesleyan opened its basketball season and its Ohio Conference play with an 80-64 win over Otterbein.

The Bishops led all the way and Otterbein's only rally fell seven points short of tying Wesleyan in the second half.

Bluffton College had to come from behind in the closing minutes to win its cage opener from Heidelberg, 70-65.

The Bluffs, trailing 65-59 with three minutes remaining, turned on both offenses and defense, to score 11 points and hold the Student Princes scoreless.

Wilmington, paced by Jack Harner's 24 points, had little trouble rushing Denison, 66-36.

players are included on the 22-man all-star football team selected by erica. They are Fred Dugan, Day-

Mulloy and Seixas Cop Doubles Tilt

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP)—America's two old men of tennis, 44-year-old Gardner Mulloy and 34-year-old Vic Seixas, crushed the Philippines' prized doubles team of Felicissimo Ampon and Raymond Deyro in 45 crisp minutes today to land the United States in the Davis Cup Interzone final against Belgium next week.

Mulloy, tall, graying doubles specialist from Miami, and Seixas of Philadelphia, playing his 53rd Davis Cup match, won 6-1, 6-3, 6-2 to give America a 3-0 lead in the best-of-five match.

Notre Dame, SMU Set for Battle

DALLAS (AP)—Notre Dame and Southern Methodist, each hoping to wind up with a winning season for the first time in three years, fire last shots of the college football campaign here Saturday.

The Irish, after a 7-3 record to offset one of their worst seasons in history, are heavy favorites to beat an SMU team that has done better than expected but still is only 50-50 for the year.

Any success Southern Methodist may have rests on the passing of Don Meredith, who has one of the greatest completion averages in football—736 with 64 connections in 7 throws.

Women's Bowling Champ Spotligted

CHICAGO (AP)—Mrs. Marion Ladewig, six times national women's bowling champion, took the spotlight Thursday in the first round of the World's Invitational bowling tournament here.

The 42-year-old Grand Rapids, Mich., grandmother fired a spectacular 922 in four games to lead the field of 64 women seeking berths in the match-game finals. Mrs. Ladewig, 5 feet 4 and weighing 130 pounds, started with a 201 game, hit 265 in the second and followed with 234 and 222 for a 230 average.

Logart Is Favored To Defeat Ortega

CLEVELAND (AP)—The loser of tonight's 12-round battle between Isaac Logart and Gaspar (Indian) Ortega will have a long wait for a crack at the vacant welterweight title.

The winner—and Logart is favored—will continue to scrap other fighters in an elimination tournament for the 147-pound division crown surrendered by Carmen Basilio. Basilio gave up the title after belting Sugar Ray Robinson out of the middleweight togo.

Tonight's fight is the first of the elimination series and the loser won't get another chance at the title until the championship is settled among five other fighters.

Braves-Cubs Player Deal

Irks Other NL Spokesmen

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—National League rivals for Milwaukee's crown expressed amazement, disbelief and just plain anger today over the five-player trade between the Braves and Chicago Cubs that further strengthened the world champions' heavily stocked pitching staff.

"I think that's awful," muttered Roy Hamey, general manager of the Philadelphia Phillies when informed that the Braves had acquired veteran pitcher Bob Rush, sophomore right-hander Don Kaiser and rookie outfielder Eddie Haas from Chicago in exchange for southpaw Taylor Phillips and catcher Sammy Taylor.

"What did the Braves use on those poor Cubbies, a gun? They were tough enough before. Now it looks like we really have our work cut out for us."

Mayo Smith, manager of the Phillies, wouldn't believe it at first. "How can they make a deal like that?" he asked. "I'd sure like to know."

Buzzie Bavasi, Los Angeles Dodgers vice president and general manager said: "It looks like that will make it that much tougher for us to catch them next year."

San Francisco Giants officials complained they had offered the Cubs much more in playing talent in a proposed deal involving Rush.

The transaction was the second of the day. Earlier, the St. Louis Cardinals sent three pitchers—veteran Willard Schmidt and rookie Marty Kutyna and Ted Wiaand—to the Cincinnati Redlegs for two outfielders, Joe Taylor and rookie Curtis Flood.

The addition of Rush and Kaiser will complement a Milwaukee staff headed by southpaw Warren Spahn, Lew Burdette and Bob Buhl, and backed up by Juan Pi-

Rush was a much better pitcher last season than his 6-16 record indicated. He lost several 1-0, 2-1 and 3-2 games, as well as a few in extra innings for the Cubs.

Steve Bilko has been a consistent hitter the last three seasons with the Los Angeles Angels. He hit .328 in 1955, led the Pacific Coast League with .360 in 1956 and batted an even .300 in 1957.

North-South Freeway Leg Contract Sale in January

Contracts for the first section of the Cincinnati-to-Columbus leg of the north-south freeway will be let early next year, Highway Chief Charles M. Noble announced today.

"We have tentatively scheduled for contract sale in early 1958 the segment in Franklin County running south of Columbus between Stimmel and Lambert Roads," Noble said.

This segment is technically a relocation of Routes 62 and 3, Noble pointed out, but will carry State Route 1 — the Cincinnati-Connecticut Freeway.

The department paved the way for early construction of this section by approving the relocation following a public hearing in Columbus November 7.

Major portion of the freeway's south leg, between Cincinnati and Harrisburg (Franklin County) is planned for construction after July 1, 1959 — conclusion of Governor O'Neill's announced biennium program. Consulting engineers' preliminary report for this section is expected shortly.

The Franklin County section begins at Stimmel Road, where it ties in with the Sandusky St. leg of Columbus' innerbelt system. From here it extends south to Frank Road, east of Route 104.

AT THIS POINT the new highway begins to angle southwest, following a southwest course to the end of the project just north of Harrisburg. It connects present Route 62 and 3 just east of the B & O Railroad crossing.

Interchanges are planned at Frank Road just east of Route 104; at a point in the vicinity of the present Dyer Road-Route 104 intersection; at Stringtown Road, about midway between Hoover Road and 104; and at Route 665, in the vicinity of the Seeds-Haughn intersection with Route 665.

Provisions will be made for an interchange at Lambert Road, end of this project, which is to be completed as part of a later project.

Bridges are to be constructed to carry Hoover and Young Roads over the freeway. Another bridge is tentatively planned to carry the freeway over White Road, about one mile east of Hoover.

The Hoover bridge (grade separation) is to be built between Orders and Holton Roads, and the Young bridge in the vicinity of the present Young-Zuber intersection.

The new highway is to be four lanes wide, with opposing lanes separated by a median strip. Median width for the entire stretch south of Frank Road is to be 84 feet wide. It will gradually narrow between Frank and Stimmel to connect the Sandusky Expressway, which has a 50-foot median.

The relocation of Routes 62 and 3 was first discussed at a public hearing last year, after which it was determined certain modifications should be considered. The routing as now adopted is slightly different than the original line.

Slight changes provide for better interchanges at the Dyer-Route 104 intersection and Lambert Road and a less expensive grade separation with the railroad north of Harrisburg.

Noble said the 12-mile Franklin County freeway section will be constructed as two separate projects.

Woman, 72, Finally Winner In Long Gold Stock Dispute

CINCINNATI — A 27-year international legal battle behind her, Mrs. Idonah Slade Perkins winged back toward her home in Manila today, 144,000 shares of Philippine gold mining stock finally in her possession.

She flew into Cincinnati Thursday, paused only long enough to collect stock certificates certifying her ownership from the clerk of Hamilton County Common Pleas Court, then boarded a west-bound flight.

The spry, 72-year-old former New York resident, even so, complained to the court that price of the stock had declined from $25 to $1 a share during the years since 1930 in which she had taken her case to the courts of New York and California, the Supreme Court of the United States and the Philippines and then into the Common Pleas tribunals of Hamilton County (Cincinnati) and adjoining Clermont County.

The Cincinnati case was filed against First National Bank of this city, as transfer agent of the stock while the Clermont suit named as defendant John W. Haussermann, a native of the county who went to the Islands in 1898 as a Spanish War volunteer and remained to achieve fame as "gold king of the Philippines."

Since 1916 he has been president of the Benguet Consolidated Gold Mining Co., of Baguio, P.I. whose stock was involved in Mrs. Perkins' long battle.

Mrs. Perkins originally acquired the stock in New York and took it with her to Manila, her residence as the wife of Eugene Arthur Perkins, for years general counsel for the mining firm. Perkins sued for divorce in 1930, claiming the stock under a Philippine statute which held, in effect, that no woman could own any property except the clothes on her back. The statute was repealed shortly after World War II.

Mrs. Perkins contested the action, citing her American origin and the fact that she acquired the stock in New York.

The Perkins were divorced in 1934. He died last April.

In February, 1955 the courts finally ruled in favor of Mrs. Perkins.

Once more, however, legal difficulties ensued. Her attorneys demanded 40,000 shares of the stock in lieu of a cash fee.

Mrs. Perkins refused and the court ordered the shares placed in escrow pending settlement. A cash agreement involving $25,922 ultimately was reached and the court then ordered release of the stock. Mrs. Perkins' flight into, and from the city Thursday, followed.

Rotary Hears GE Speaker "Speak Out" Says Ex-Newspaperman

Circleville Rotarians yesterday were told that smart employers do speak out on most controversial issues.

Robert C. Wentz, manager of communications and community relations for General Electric's Large Lamp Department at Nela Park, spoke on "Employer Silence Is Not Golden".

Wentz, an ex-newspaperman, related how his company was surprised by community opinion during a strike several years ago. He said most groups in the community sided with the strikers, in spite of a long company history of pension plans, guaranteed annual wages and other employee benefits.

The reason: General Electric had failed to speak frankly to its employees, to management, customers and the general public on many controversial issues. "The company failed to take credit for all its good works in employee relations," Wentz said.

Now, he declared, General Electric speaks out on such issues as automation, union negotiations and strikes, the guaranteed annual wage, price increases in products, employee pay and how it is computed, cost of living increases, compulsory union membership and government issues.

WENTZ SHOWED slides of the various media used by GE in telling its own story. The speaker was introduced by Harry Diehl, local General Electric employee.

Pentagon Eyes Quick Building Of A-Airplane

Defense Officials Ponder Possible Race With Soviet Science

WASHINGTON — Defense officials are trying to decide whether to race Russia for a prestige-establishing "first" in some flyable kind of atomic plane, or take more time to create one militarily useful.

A decision must be made in the next few months, it was said in responsible quarters today.

Some experts think any nuclear plane that could be built now would be too heavy and too slow for bombing. But they concede that even if it weren't the best, the first such plane would add to prestige.

The situation confronting the United States now is like that which it faced in the satellite program. The choice there was to keep the Vanguard satellite project on a simon-pure scientific basis, with almost no relation to the military missile front. Russia, making the military choice, won that race.

The Soviets also have launched the first atomic-powered surface ship although the U. S. is the leader in the atomic submarine field.

Looking still further ahead toward the time of warfare in space, the Pentagon will set up sometime this month a new Advanced Research Projects Agency.

HEADED BY a civilian, the function of that upper echelon agency will be to define and develop future weapons which the individual services, preoccupied with today's troubles, may fail to discern or ignore. ARPA will be an operating outfit to develop new weapons and systems by itself independent of the individual services. It then will designate a service to operate the weapon or system it develops.

The interests of ARPA will be comprehensive, pointed to such things as space platforms or rockets reaching toward the moon.

A portion of the proposed $2 billion increase in the next defense budget may go to stepping up an antisubmarine warfare project and construction.

Another and much bigger portion of it would go into ballistic missile money. Part of that missile money is destined for augmenting the current Navy ballistic missile program.

Extradition Waived by Two

Two men waived extradition yesterday in Pickaway County Common Pleas Court.

Ray W. Gibson alias Ray W. Smith heard his rights in the matter of extradition yesterday and waived them. He is wanted in Grand Rapids, Mich., for violation of the check law.

Ernest Romans, alias Kent Miller, waived extradition and will be returned to Kentucky. He is wanted for escaping from a penal institution. Romans fled from the Kentucky State Penitentiary in October, 1956.

Speedy Drivers Fined by Court

Three speeders appeared in Circleville Municipal Court today. Arrested by the State Highway Patrol they were:

James R. Manchester, 32, and William Corzine Jr., 36, both of Chillicothe; each fined $15 and costs for speeding at 65 miles per hour in a 50 mile zone.

Ivan Prince, 41, Hilliards; $10 and costs for speeding at 70 miles per hour.

Check Passer Heads for Pen

George A. Oyler was sentenced to the Ohio State Penitentiary, Columbus yesterday, by Common Pleas Judge William Ammer.

Oyler was arrested for issuing a check with insufficient funds for which he was already on probation. He was sentenced to from one to three years, for breaking probation.

400 Persons Attend Annual Soil District Beef Dinner

More than 400 persons attended the annual beef dinner of the Pickaway County Soil Conservation District last night in the Fairgrounds Coliseum.

They heard a talk by the Rev. Russell H. Hoy, author of a regular feature in the "Ohio Farmer"; named three new supervisors for the district, and discovered who won the annual essay contest.

The Rev. Hoy spoke on "Conservation, Soil and Water", but dwelt mostly on conservation of human life. He told of the great need to direct youth into work such as the 4-H Club, Boy and Girl Scouts and the young people's work in soil conservation.

Elected as supervisors were Winfred Bidwell, Route 1, Williamsport; Frank Graves, Route 1, Kingston, and Ralph May, 157 W. Mound St.

Winner of the essay contest was Janet Grissom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Grissom, Route 1. Her essay was titled "Our Debt". Second place was won by Jo Hunsinger, Williamsport, with an essay on "Conservation A Revelation".

Roger Schneider, Route 4, was third with his "Grassland Farming," and Joan Leist, Route 1, Williamsport, was fourth with "The Soil — What Are You Doing for Me".

North-South Freeway Leg Contract Sale in January

Contracts for the first section of the Cincinnati-to-Columbus leg of the north-south freeway will be let early next year, Highway Chief Charles M. Noble announced today.

"We have tentatively scheduled for contract sale in early 1958 the segment in Franklin County running south of Columbus between Stimmel and Lambert Roads," Noble said.

This segment is technically a relocation of Routes 62 and 3, Noble pointed out, but will carry State Route 1 — the Cincinnati-Connaut Freeway.

The department paved the way for early construction of this section by approving the relocation following a public hearing in Columbus November 7.

Major portion of the freeway's south leg, between Cincinnati and Harrisburg (Franklin County) is planned for construction after July

1, 1959 — conclusion of Governor O'Neill's announced biennium program. Consulting engineers' preliminary report for this section is expected shortly.

The Franklin County section begins at Stimmel Road, where it ties in with the Sandusky St. leg of Columbus' innerbelt system. From here it extends south to Frank Road, east of Route 104.

AT THIS POINT the new highway begins to angle southwest, following a southwest course to the end of the project just north of Harrisburg. It connects present Route 62 and 3 just east of the B & O Railroad crossing.

Interchanges are planned at Frank Road just east of Route 104; at a point in the vicinity of the present Dyer Road-Route 104 intersection; at Stringtown Road, about midway between Hoover Road and 104; and at Route 665, in the vicinity of the Seeds-Haugh intersection with Route 667.

Provisions will be made for an interchange at Lambert Road, end of this project, which is to be completed as part of a later project.

Bridges are to be constructed to carry Hoover and Young Roads over the freeway. Another bridge is tentatively planned to carry the freeway over White Road, about one mile east of Hoover.

The Hoover bridge (grade separation) is to be built between Orders and Holton Roads, and the Young bridge in the vicinity of the present Young-Zuber intersection.

The new highway is to be four lanes wide, with opposing lanes separated by a median strip. Median width for the entire stretch south of Frank Road is to be 84 feet wide. It will gradually narrow between Frank and Stimmel to connect the Sandusky Expressway, which has a 50-foot median.

The relocation of Routes 62 and 3 was first discussed at a public hearing last year, after which it was determined certain modifications should be considered. The routing as now adopted is slightly different than the original line.

Slight changes provide for better interchanges at the Dyer-Route 104 intersection and Lambert Road and a less expensive grade separation with the railroad north of Harrisburg.

Noble said the 12-mile Franklin County freeway section will be constructed as two separate projects.

Rotary Hears GE Speaker

"Speak Out" Says Ex-Newspaperman

Circleville Rotarians yesterday were told that smart employers do speak out on most controversial issues.

Robert C. Wentz, manager of communications and community relations for General Electric's Large Lamp Department at Nela Park, spoke on "Employer Silence Is Not Golden".

Wentz, an ex-newspaperman, related how his company was surprised by community opinion during a strike several years ago. He said most groups in the community sided with the strikers, in spite of a long company history of pension plans, guaranteed annual wages and other employee benefits.

The reason, General Electric had failed to speak frankly to its employees, to management, customers and the general public on many controversial issues. "The company failed to take credit for all its good works in employee relations," Wentz said.

Now, he declared, General Electric speaks out on such issues as automation, union negotiations and strikes, the guaranteed annual wage, price increases in products, employees pay and how it is computed, cost of living increases, compulsory union membership and government issues.

"WE HOPE TO sell the contract for the White Road to Lambert Road section by March and the other (Stimmel to White) within a short period after."

Noble noted that some 66 miles of the freeway north of Columbus will be under contract by Christmas. About 35 miles are under contract now. Bids for 11 more miles will be opened Tuesday, while bids for 20 miles will be opened December 17.

The 35 miles now under contract are divided into eight projects in Ashtabula, Lake, Medina, Wayne, Ashland, Delaware and Morrow counties. Three projects in Medina, Richland and Franklin counties make up the 11 miles involved in the Tuesday opening.

The 20 miles of new highway for which bids will be opened December 17 are divided into five projects and are located in Ashtabula, Medina, Richland, Ashland and Morrow counties.

Woman, 72, Finally Winner In Long Gold Stock Dispute

CINCINNATI (AP)—A 27-year international legal battle behind her, Mrs. Idonah Slade Perkins winged back toward her home in Manila today, 144,000 shares of Philippine gold mining stock finally in her possession.

She flew into Cincinnati Thursday, paused only long enough to collect stock certificates certifying her ownership from the clerk of Hamilton County Common Pleas Court, then boarded a west-bound flight.

The spy, 72-year-old former New York resident, even so, complained to the court that price of the stock had declined from $25 to $1 a share during the years since 1930 in which she had taken her case to the courts of New York and California, the Supreme Court of the United States and the Philippines and then into the Common Pleas tribunals of Hamilton County (Cincinnati) and adjoining Clermont County.

The Cincinnati case was filed against First National Bank of this city, as transfer agent of the stock while the Clermont suit named as defendant John W. Haussermann, a native of the county who went to the Islands in 1898 as a Spanish War volunteer and remained to achieve fame as "gold king of the Philippines."

Since 1916 he has been president of the Benguet Consolidated Gold Mining Co., of Baguio, P.I. whose stock was involved in Mrs. Perkins' long battle.

Haussermann, one-time assistant attorney general of the islands, will observe his 90th birthday Dec. 14 on his Clermont County farm.

Mrs. Perkins originally acquired the stock in New York and took it with her to Manila, her residence as the wife of Eugene Arthur Perkins, for years general counsel for the mining firm. Perkins sued for divorce in 1930, claiming the stock under a Philippine statute which held, in effect, that no woman could own any property except the clothes on her back. The statute was repealed shortly after World War II.

Mrs. Perkins contested the action, citing her American origin and the fact that she acquired the stock in New York.

The Perkins were divorced in 1934. He died last April.

In February, 1955 the courts finally ruled in favor of Mrs. Perkins.

Once more, however, legal difficulties ensued. Her attorneys demanded 40,000 shares of the stock in lieu of a cash fee.

Mrs. Perkins refused and the court ordered the shares placed in escrow pending settlement. A cash agreement involving $25,922 ultimately was reached and the court then ordered release of the stock. Mrs. Perkins' flight into, and from the city Thursday, followed.

Another Hat in Ring

COLUMBUS (AP)—Albert T. Ball of Cleveland, former union organizer and unsuccessful candidate for state senator last year, obtained petitions Thursday for lieutenant governor in the Democratic primary election next May.
